IF you get Dr. Pierce's genuine medicines, you're sure of two things—that they're the cheapest and the best. They're the cheapest no matter what the price, for you pay only for the good you get. They're guaranteed. If they fail to benefit or cure, in any case, you have your money back. And you can be sure that they're the best, for they're the only remedies that are, or can be, sold so.

BUT you won't get the genuine medicines, except through druggists regularly authorized as agents, and always at these long-established prices:

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery (for the Liver, Blood and Lungs), . . . $1.00.
Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription (for woman's weakness and ailments), . . $1.00.
Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (for the Liver), ... 25 cents.
Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, . . 50 cents.

Beware of everything purporting to be the genuine medicines, when offered, by unauthorized dealers, at lower prices. They are generally dilutions, imitations or counterfeits.

TOWARD THE WEST

The Funeral Train Has Taken Its Start,

Bearing the Remains of the President's Wife.

A Wealth of Beautiful Flowers Abound,

Strikingly Appropriate to Her Lovely Character.

All Along the Route the People Bow Their Heads in Sadness and in Sympathy for the Bereaved.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Funeral exercises over the remains of Mrs. Harrison previous to their removal to Indianapolis for interment, were held in the east room of the white house at 10 o'clock this morning. They were brief and simple, in accordance with the wishes of the president and family, often expressed, that there be no attempt at display. An hour before the services began, the casket was brought down stairs from the room in which Mrs. Harrison died, and placed in the center of the room directly underneath the middle chandelier. The body laid with the head to the south. At either end of the casket stood an immense Sago palm, whose graceful waving branches reached nearly to the ceiling of the magnificent apartment. When the doors were thrown open to admit the first arrivals, the scene was strikingly beautiful. The chandeliers cast a flood of mellow light, the windows having been darkened. The several mantel pieces were banked with ferns and flanked at each end by a larger palm. Around the casket were grouped the great wealth of floral offerings, through which friends of Mrs. Harrison, present and absent, testified to their appreciation of her worth while living and their sorrow at her death. They filled all the space on either side of the casket almost to the windows on the east and the door into the corridor on the west, connecting the apartment with the private portion of the house.

At the head stood the cross sent by the republican state central committee of California, made of white chrysanthemums; from the angle of the cross was suspended a wreath of yellow chrysanthemums, and against the base rested another of red roses and palms. Opposite, at the foot, was a massive crown, the gift of the New York city chapter of the daughters of the revolution. It was composed of chrysanthemums and white roses and rested upon a base base of violet.

Broad streamers of white silk bore on their ends the insignia of the order and the name of the chapter.

On the head of the casket rested a wreath, prepared at the white house conservatory by direction of the president. It was made of white roses and orchids, of which Mrs. Harrison was very fond. Another wreath, of carnations and chrysanthemums, also favorites of Mrs. Harrison, will be placed upon the casket at Indianapolis.

It is practically impossible to give more than a mention of the more noteworthy of the emblems that surrounded the casket. They comprised every known device appropriate for such an occasion, and the profusion was unequalled in the experience of all who witnessed it. Among them were the following:

Wreath of chrysanthemums from Queen Victoria, presented by Hon. Michael Herbert, British charge d'affaires.

A mammoth wreath from the diplomatic corps, composed of chrysanthemums, bride roses, pink orchids, ferns and palms, tied with three bows of broad heliotrope ribbon, on one of which was inscribed, "The diplomatic corps."

Wreath of large chrysanthemums, surrounding a bunch of loose blooms, from the cabinet.

Cross of ivy leaves and chryanthemums frm Vice-President and Mrs. Morton.

Wreath of ivy leaves, chrysanthemums, wheat sheaf, palm leaves and violets from Mrs. S. B. Elkins.

Wreath of chrysanthemums and palms, with bac. ostrich tips from Mrs. J. W. Noble.

Wreath of pink and white roses from the executive office.

Wreath of roses from Col. Ernst.

Wreath of chrysanthemums, lilies of the valley and roses from Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

Immense shield of white chrysanthemums and roses, in the face of which was worked, in purple, the insignia of the order, from the Washington City chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution, presented by a committee of five, headed by Miss Dorsey, secretary.

Wreath of large pink chrysanthemums from Representative and Mrs. R. R. Hitt.

Wreath of white roses from Judge and Mrs. Joseph McKenna, of California.

Wreath of violets from C. A. Coffin, Boston.

Pillow of roses, lilies of the valley and chrysanthemums from the students of Norwood institute.

Cross of ivy leaves from Mrs. Cabell.

After the services the flowers, or as many of them as could be carried in two large wagons, were taken to the station and placed with the casket in the observation car of the funeral train.

During the time intervening between the arrival of the first persons to appear at the door of the whitehouse for admission to the services and the entrance of the president and other mourners the arrivals were brisk and constant. Mr. Whitelaw Reid was one of the earliest to appear. A number of diplomatists, including Baron Fava, the Italian minister; Minister Guzman, of Nicaragua; Senor Romero, the Mexican charge d'affaires, and Marquis Imperiali, the Italian charge d'affaires—came together. Chief Justice Fuller, Justice Gray and Mrs. Gray, Justice Brown and Mrs. Brown, Justice Brewer and Mrs. Brewer, Justice Blatchford, Chief Justice Richardson, of the court of claims; Senator Proctor, Commodore Ramsay, Admiral Jewett, Solicitor General and Mrs. Aldrich, Mrs. Porter, the widow of Admiral Porter, were other persons of distintion who were present.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the first of those who attended the services in the east room entered the white house and from the time of their appearance until the services began, a constant stream of social, official and political friends of the Harrison family came through the gates of the mansion in vehicles and on foot.

There was little outside the white house to indicate any unusual event, except the presence of so many carriages, and the few blue coated policemen at the gates. Two score of people gathered about the eastern entrance and along the iron picketed fence and looked with interest across the lawn, carpeted with dead leaves, at the white coulmns and drawn blinds of the executive residence, and the arriving and departing carriages.

Those two score spectators were plentifully augmented before the conclusion of the services in the house and when the funeral cortege moved out of the white house gates, the steps of the treasury were crowded with people while several hundred others gathered along the sidewalks in the vicinity of the mansion.

It wanted a few minutes only of 10 o'clock when ex-Secretary Blaine, following close behind Mrs. Blaine and Miss Hattie Blaine, entered the white house. It was his first visit since just before that memorable day when he sent his resignation as secretary of state to the president. The Blaines were seated in the second row of seats, just behind the row reserved for the supreme court. Singly and in groups of two and three, the people came to pay their last tribute to the first lady of the land. There were many persons of distinction there and many who had no other claim on the dead woman than love for the remembrance of some kindly act done by her.

The tall clock over the usher's desk in the public hallway just outside the east room, tolled out 10 strokes, when the first sign of the beginning of the ceremonial appeared.

Down the long, carpeted corridor came the honorary pall-bearers in double file, each dressed in sombre black. Vice President Morton and Secretary John W. Foster headed the line, while following them in the order named came Secretary Elkins and Attorney General Miller, Postmaster General Wanamaker and Secretary Tracy, Secretary Noble and Secretary Rusk. They were assigned to seats in the first row, nearest to the catafalque. At the end, and to one side of the private corridor that enters the east room, is a broad staircase, and down this came the mourners. At the head was Benjamin Harrison, the husband, his official position forgotten for the time being by the assembled friends in the sympathy which went out from the hearts of all those present. Leaning on his arm was Mrs. J. Robert McKee, the tender and loving daughter, whose devotion to her mother knew no fatigue. The face of the president was of a deathly pallor, the traces of the mental suffering were deeply marked. Mr. Russell B. Harrison, supporting his wife, followed the father and sister. Then came the venerable parent of the deceased mistress of the white house, the Rev. Dr. Scott, escorting Mrs. John F. Parker, the niece of Mrs. Harrison. Mr. J. Robert McKee and Mrs. Mary S. Dimick, the son-in-law and niece of the dead woman. Hon. J. V. L. Findlay, of Baltimore, the president's cousin, and Mrs. Findiay, and Lieutenant John F. Parker, and Private Secretary Halford were the others composing the family party. They came slowly down the long corridor, past the banked palms and flowers, past the great portraits of former presidents of the United States and entered the room of death. All rose to receive them. The mourners seated themselves to the south of the catafalque where the palms and banks of flowers to a great extent shielded them from observation. Those present, barely 200 in number, were almost exclusively the official family of the president and those whose relations with the family put them on the footing of domestic friends. When the spectators had resumed their seats in silence, Dr. Hamlin, the pastor of the Church of the Covenant, read the opening passage of scripture: "In my Father's house are many mansions," and the other selected passages which followed.

This was followed by a brief prayer which was closed by the Lord's prayer which all present repeated in low tones after the officiating clergyman. Then Dr. Bartlett read from the scriptures passages appropriate to the occasion.

THE RIVER CHANNELS

Will Be Made Twenty Feet Deep.

War Department Approves the Plan.

Great Rejoicing in Marine Circles All Over the Great Lakes.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 27.—Gen. Poe has received word from the war department that his twenty foot channel between Duluth, Chicago and Buffalo had been fully approved by the department, and directing him to prepare the necessary advertisements for bids for doing the work.

These will be ready in a few days at the most, and it is fair to presume that the work will be commenced at no late day. There is consequently great rejoicing in marine circles.

THE PARIS FUND.

It Will Be Taken From the Bankers' Hands.

Two Hundred Thousand Dollars To Be Placed Where It Was Intended.

Dublin, Oct. 27.—Timothy Harrington, the Parnellite leader and M. P. for Dublin harbor, has given notice that he accepts the proposition of Archbishop Croke that the Paris fund should be released from the custody of the bankers in whose charge it now is, and held by disinterested parties in behalf of the Irish national cause, until a decision is arrived at as to the disposal of the fund.

This apparent termination of the prolonged controversy over the dispostion of the fund causes general satisfaction in Irish circles.

It is presumed that Mr. Herrington has the consent fo Mrs. Parnell in this step, as agreement on her part would probably be necessary in behalf of the estate of Mr. Parnell, who had a claim against the fund, now amounting, it is said, to about $200,000, and originally raised by contributions in Ireland, America and elsewhere, to aid the tenants evicted for nonpayment of rent.

SEVERE GALE.

London, Oct. 27.—A severe gale is raging along the British coasts. Steamers have been delayed and fishing craft and other small vessels have been wrecked in the storm, but so far no loss of life has been reported.

CROOKED

Is the Work of Superintendent Porter,

Who Is Boss of the Present Census.

He Admits It in a Philadelphia Letter.

Many Industries Were Left Out of the Report.

In Order to Make to Figures Aid the Republican Party, the Party of Boasted Morality.

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—Superintendent Porter pleads guilty to all that is charged against him and puts himself in the same class with the much despised Peck, of New York.

He has taken such industries as best suited his case and left the others until after election.

Could anything be more unfair or contemptible?

Superintendent of the Census Robert P. Porter, defending the bulletin of Philadelphia's manufacturing census, yesterday addressed Charles Heber Clark, who superintended the revision, the following letter:

Department of the Interior, Census Office, Washington, D. C., Oct. 25, 1892.—Mr. dear Mr. Clark: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter dated October 24, 1892, calling attention to the preliminary totals recently published by this office for the shipbuilding and sugar refining industries of Philadelphia, and expressing the belief that certain returns had been omitted by this office in making the compilation for the bulletin referred to, this action resulting from your official responsibility for the collection of statistics of manufactures in Philadelphia, and the deep interest which you have manifested to obtain an accurate and complete exhibit of the manufacturing industry in your city. I fully appreciate your feelings in the matter, and avail myself of the opportunity to acknowledge the careful attention and conscientious fidelity given by you to the recanvass of the city conducted under your supervision during the present year.

Your inference is correct that the operations of certain establishments located in Philadelphia are not included in the totals referred to, and in this connection your attention is invited to the following quotation on the first page of the bulletin. "The statements contained in this bulletin are preliminary and subject to modification for final report; therefore, fair criticism and suggestions are invited, with a view to such revision and correction as may appear necessary. The total presented in the complete reports will not, however, be less and may, in a number of cases, be considerably increased."

Special Efforts for Philadelphia.

Especial attention has been given to and extraordinary expenses have been incurred by this office with a view to obtaining an accurate census of manufactures in Philadelphia, and work was commenced at the earliest date practicable after the census of population. The appointment of David S. Thompson as a special agent of this office to exercise local supervision of the work, was one of the first made. He assumed his duties July 21, 1890, and continued in office until June 23, 1891, when he was dismissed for insubordination. A partial investigation of the work performed under his direction made it apparent that the returns had been padded and were in many cases entirely fictitious.

A complete recanvass of the city was deemed inexpedient, but a partial recanvass for the purpose of verification and correction was ordered and placed in your charge February 29, 1892, since which date every effort has been made to obtain the data essential to a complete and accurate report; but even at this late date, and with all the labor and expense which has been incurred to obtain the desired result, some of the most extensive manufacturers have neglected to obtain the desired result, some of the most extensive manufacturers have neglected to furnish the information required by law.

The importance of Philadelphia as a manufacturing city, the great interest which has been generally manifested by her citizens in the re-canvass of the city, combined with the silly charge on the part of a few that this office desired to suppress her manufacturing importance, caused the decision to publish the preliminary totals for the city, and invite attention to the fact that they were not published as being complete or final, with the expectation that such public expression would follow as might influence delinquent manufacturers to a performance of their duty without forcing this office to more extreme measures.

The Cramps' Returns.

October 22, 1890, this office received a return from the Wm. Cramp & Son Ship and Engine Building company which was so incomplete in essential details as to be unavailable for tabulation. A special agent of this office was sent July, 1891, to obtain such additional information as was essential, and application was made at various dates thereafter, but without effect. Although under date of September 9, 1891, Special Agent J. A. Kaiser advised this office that W. H. Cramp had stated to him that the returns should be completed and forwarded to this office within a week from that date. The return has not yet been received. The schedule of questions which it comprises is the same that other shipbuilding establishments have answered. Its essential features being a statement of capital invested, labor employed, and wages paid, materials used and their cost, miscellaneous expenses and goods manufactured and their value at the works.

The Sugar Omissions.

In the sugar refining industry the return of Harrison, Frazier & Co. is omitted because of its incompleteness in essential details. It appears from the reports of the various agents of this office who have endeavored to obtain the return that this firm is not in existence at present, although it was apparently engaged in extensive operations in 1890. It also appears from your report under date of August 10, 1892, that the books containing the data required to complete the rteurns were in possession of a former member of the firm, who was at that date out of the city.

When the returns referred to are completed they will be included with the statistics of manufactures in Philadelphia, but for the reasons stated they are now excluded therefrom; and, under the requirements of the census law, final reports cannot properly be issued for any city until complete returns are obtained from every establishment known to have been in operation during the census year. The fact, however, that a few manufacturers are derelict in their duty is not considered a sufficient reason for withholding the publication for a city of such data as have been compiled, accompanied by explicit statement that the figures are preliminary and that totals are likely to be increased. When, as in the case of several leading cities, there are so many cases of positive refusal or willful neglect to furnish the information required by law as to reduce the totals for the city far below those reported for the census year 1880, no publication whatever has been made.

Very respectfully,
ROBERT P. PORTER.
Superintendent of Census.

WORK FOR LAWYERS.

Life Insurance Companies Get Into Court.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Suit was begun by the Home Insurance company, of New York, against Wm. F. Gorrell and David M. Vosburgh, M. D., yesterday, in the United States circuit court. Damages are laid at $15,000.

The declaration sets forth that in 1885 Gorrell, acting as agent for the company, employed Dr. Vosburgh as a medical examiner.

Thereafter, the allegation runs, the two determined upon passing applicants for policies, suffering from incurable diseases, who should have been rejected as unsafe risks. May 5, 1885, an applicant of this character was insured for $1,000 after examination by Vosburgh, the corporation alleges. He died in 1888 and the policy was paid.

A similar case is alleged to have occurred May 14, 1882, with Charles Pratt, who obtained a policy for a similar amount. In August, 1886, Andrew Klein was insured for $3,000 under circumstances averred to be similar.

CONFESSED HIS CRIME.

Dick Robinson Murdered the Woman.

Sedalia, Mo., Oct. 27.—The negro, Dick Robinson, who was arrested on suspicion of murdering Johanna Schollman, and who was removed to Califora jail to prevent lynching, made a full confession last night. He says that he and the girl were lovers and Sunday night they quarreled. He accused her with intimacy with another negro. He then knocked her down, cut her throat and dragged the body into the ditch, where it was found Monday morning.

DAVE HILL'S A FIGHTER

But He Fights His Battles Squarely.

The Senator Has No Use for MacVeagh.

He Says the Democratic Party Can Get Along Better Without Such Men.

New York, Oct. 27.—A special to the Herald from Washington says that Senator Hill, while in that city yesterday, in reply to congratulations upon his Tammany speech, said:

"I am glad you were pleased, and especially with that part in which I paid my respects to that venomous class of political hypocrites and mountebanks which seems to crop out in Pennsylvania as well as in other states. I cannot sufficiently emphasize in words my contempt for this class of renegades, and as well for malcontents and bolters within the party.

"If Mr. MacVeagh were a patriot and an honest man, as he now claims to be, he would not have waited for sixteen years to give utterance to his belief that Mr. Tilden was honestly elected in 1876. Knowing that fact, as he alleges, and suppressing it all these years, while he was the beneficiary of party favor, clearly shows to my mind that he is not the class of persons the democratic party wants or would follow.

"The democratic party, and certainly the sound democrats do not need a set of egotistic, self-lauding upstarts to undertake to tell them what to do. Every democrat had made up his mind in November, 1876, that Mr. Tilden carried the majority of the electoral vote and this MacVeagh was one of the people who joined in the great political theft.

"The democratic party has prospered without him, and the mess this vainglorious person has already made will do the democratic party more injury than good. Our Irish friends are already in arms, and the more he explains the more he condemns himself. He should be repudiated by the party for its own self-respect. It does not need him and should not recognize him by listening to his harangues. It is not democracy."

LAKE MARINE.

Vessel Passages Through the Straits and Rivers.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Grain freights are at a standstill to-day. Shippers are offering 2 cents on some small lots of wheat, but advices from Buffalo are so unfavorable that vessel men fear a great delay in getting their boats unloaded.

Buffalo.

Buffalo, Oct. 27.—The blockade in the grain trade here is daily growing worse. To-day brokers' offices are flooded with telegrams asking what dispatch can be given shipments. The invariable answer is: "No room for any more grain at Buffalo." Canal boats were expected to return this week have been held in New York because there was no room to unload there. Coal shippers who have large shipments to go forward before the close of navigation are becoming anxious on account of boats being tied up here with their grain cargoes an board. HOME INSURANCE CO.

An Application for a Revocation of Its License.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 27.—The auditor of public accounts yesterday made public a statement regarding the controversy that has arisen over the application for a revocation of the license which authorizes the Home Insurance company, of New York, to do business in this state.

The application for revocation of the license of the company was made by an attorney for W. F. Gorrell, a former agent of said company, on the alleged ground that the company had made application to remove to the United States court a suit begun by said Gorrell against the company in the circuit court of Cook county.

The application does not question the soundness of the company's financial condition, nor would the revocation of the license affect the rights of existing policyholders. The sworn annual statement of the officers of the company to the auditor for December 31, 1891, shows a surplus of assets over all liabilities.

IMPEACHMENT PAPERS

Have Been Drafted by City Solicitor Read.

Street Commissioner Bower Will Be Tried

In the Probate Court for Irregularities in Office, If the Proper Signatures Are Obtained.

The necessary papers for the establishment of impeachment proceedings in probate court against Street Commissioner Bower, for alleged irregularities in office have been drafted and are now awaiting the signautre of a certain number of taxpayers in compliance with the law.

A short time ago certain citizens went to Solicitor Read and requested him to begin impeachment proceedings against Mr. Bower at once.

Mr. Read proceeded at once to comply with the request and has the papers ready for signatures. He has informed the parties making the request, of the fact by mail, but up to noon to-day had not heard from them.

In conversation with a Bee this morning, Mr. Read said: "If these men respond to my letter, proceedings will be established at once, or just as soon as the papers are signed properly."

"Have you given up the indictment plan?"

"We have not made up our minds as to that. Prosecuting Attorney Barber thinks it wiser to proceed by impeachment, rather than indictment and, of course, I acquisce in this."

"Can Bower be indicted after he has been impeached?"

"He certainly could, beyond any doubt, be indicted, but there is a question whether he could be indicted for more than a misdemeanor. To convict an official of felony, the law requires that state to establish that he willfully made false vouchers or pay roll, and illegally drew from the treasury $35 or more in one sum, and if so convicted, can be sent to the penitentiary. Any sum under this is a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment in the work house or jail. There are none of these vouchers issued by Bower that will equal $35. We might, and no doubt could, indict him on a hundred counts for misdemeanor, which is pretty small game. It is impossible to bunch the offenses."

SUIT TO FORECLOSE

Mortgages on the Lima Natural Gas Plant

Filed in United States Court by the Chester Pipe and Tube Company.

An important suit was filed in United States court yesterday afternoon.

The case is instituted by the Chester Pipe and Tube company of Philadelphia, against the Lima Natural Gas company, of Lima, O., to foreclose a mortgage amounting to $100,000.

The mortgage was given by the Lima Natural Gas company to the Guarantee Trust and Safe Deposit company to secure bonds to the amount of $150,000. Of the amount $50,000 has been paid, and the remaining $100,000 of bonds are now owned by the Chester Pipe and Tube company. The bill states that by reason of a failure of gas in the field, and by reason of the insolvency of the company, it will be impossible to pay the bonds when they mature. They ask for a receiver to take charge of the plant, pending the foreclosure of the mortgage. Notice has been served to the application for a receiver before Judge Ricks November 5, at Cleveland.

The attorneys for the plaintiff are Young & Young, of Dayton, O., and King & Tracy, Toledo.

A WHOPPING VERDICT

Returned Against Two Toledo Railroads.

Joseph D. Meyers, an Employ of the Lake Shore, Gets $18,000 Damages

The jury in the case of Joseph D. Myers against the Lake Shore and Pennsylvania railroad companies, which has been on hearing before Judge Pugsley's court in common pleas court, returned a verdict this morning of $18,000 for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff, while in the employ of the Lake Shore as switchman, climbed up the ladder on an Empire car which is owned by the Pennsylvania railroad company. When he grasped the hand-hold at the top it broke loose and he was precipitated below, under the wheels of the moving train. Five ribs and his collar bone were broken, and one of his feet was cut off. In his petition the plaintiff sets up that the Pennsylvania company is liable for the construction of the car and the Lake Shore for receiving a defective car. He claimed $50,000.

BLOODY

Slaughter of the Mexican Temochicans.

Last of the Aztecs Wiped From the Earth,

By Order of the Mexican President.

They Were Fighting Against Excessive Taxation.

They Made a Noble Battle for Existence But the Government Troops Out-Numbered Them and Won.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 27.—News of the annihilation of the Temochicans, a people who inhabit the village of Temochic, and who are nearly pure Aztecs, was received here yesterday evening.

Temochic is situated on the direct road to Guerrero and Jesus Maria in the mountains of southwestern Chihuahua, Mex., and has been in open rebellion against the state and federal governments for more than a year on account of excessive taxation extorted by government officials and government interference in their religious belief.

Two months ago the government sent the Eleventh battalion, in command of Gen. Ranjel, to make the people pay the tax required of them and accept government officials appointed to take charge, or to kill every one of them, and this alternative was openly boasted of by officers in Chihuahua, before the troops started for the town, and when the Temochicans heard of it they decided to fight it out.

When the soldiers made their descent on the village they were met and driven off with 22 officers and 14 men killed and two officers and 45 men taken prisoners.

The prisoners were confined on top of the Adobe church. Gen. Ranjel was the only officer who escaped.

When the news of this affair reached the ears of President Diaz he decided to annihilate the village.

Last Monday he kept his word.

The attack was made on all sides and the slaughter was terrible. At dusk the soldiers gained an entrance to the church and a terrible hand to hand fight took place, and the soldiers completed the massacre with 368 of their number killed and many wounded.

Not a man of the Temochicans is left except those who happened to be out in the mountains.

The village next day presented a fearful aspect. The streets of the little village leading to the church were filled with the bodies of the soldiers, and blood seemed to have flowed in torrents. Not a man of the Temochicans was left except those who happened to be out in the mountains, but the government has paid dearly for its victory. The feeling against the government is very strong and the incident has been called the second Alamo—which will bring light and liberty to the Mexican people as it did to those of Texas.

OHIO'S FARM CROPS.

An Increased Acreage of Wheat Reported,

But a Falling Off in the Bushels Produced.

Causes Assigned—Potatoes Almost a Failure — Unfaverable Corn Season.

Columbus, Oct. 27.—The Ohio state board of Agriculture has issued the official report, showing the acreage and product of wheat, oats, and barley, and percentage condition of other crops. The report gives the estimated product in bushels, of wheat, oats and barley for the harvest of 1892, based on returns of actual threshing done in the various townships of the state, also the percentage condition or prospect of other crops as returned by the regular township correspondents of the department. For acreage, except for the county of Richland, reference was had to the returns made by township assessors, to the various county auditors, and compiled by the secretary of state.

It is estimated from correspondents' returns, that of wheat seeded last fall, 43,-925 acres were plowed up this spring, leaving 2,794,313 acres for the wheat harvest of 1892, an increase in area over the harvest of 1891 of about 200,000 acres. This increase in area was probably induced by the advance in the price of wheat last fall, and by the conditions of soil and weather favorable to seeding. The wheat product of the state for the past harvest is estimated at an average of 14.4 bushels per acre, or a total for the state of 40,254,621 bushels, being short of last year's crop about 5,000,000 bushels. Last year the average product per acre was 17.5 bushels per acres, being one of the largest average yields per acre since 1850. This year the average is but 14.4 bushels per acre, but the increased acreage brings the total crop up to a fair, though not a full one for the state. It is estimated that about 4,000,000 bushels of the crop of last year are still in the producers' hands. Respecting the present wheat crop it is proper to here call attention to the fact that early in the season when the wheat came out of winter quarters the prospect was very low. Much of the wheat was winter-killed and the growth stunted, and it was conceded on all sides that only the most favorable weather throughout the season until harvest would save the crop. A little later, May 1, there was a slight improve, which happily was the result; the improvement being so great during May and June that ... before the harvest the prospect had increased many points. Owing to rapid growth much of the wheat was rank and strong, and the heads seemed not well filled. It was feared the result of harvest would be too much straw and too little grain, though it was figured that we might probably reach a 35,000,000 crop. The grain turned out above this expectation and now, after the result of threshing is known, which is the surest and final basis of estimating the crop of the season, we have an indication of 40,000,-000 of bushels, but owing to the prevalence of scab in some localities, and blight in others, the quality is not up to the usual average. The result of the wheat crop of 1892, as ascertained by township assessors in the regular enumeration, cannot b eascertained until about one year hence, too late to be of much benefit to the producer. It is a noticeable fact however, that this final estimate from threshers' returns, made right after harvest, when it is of some benefit, tallies very closely with returns ascertained the next year from assessors' reports and therefore can be almost invariably relied upon.

The oats crop is much below an average both in acreage and product. A short acreage because of unfavorable weather at seeding time, preventing land being put to oats that was so intended. The product over the state is from five to seven bushels per acre short of an average.

Potatoes are a very short crop, in some localities almost an entire failure, particularly in the northwest part of the state.

The season has been unfavorable to the corn crop and it is therefore very unevenly distributed over the state. Very late planting, unfavorable soil conditions and lack of cultivation on account of excessive rains, followed by drouth at earing time are among the causes.

CATHOLICS IN SESSION.

Important Meeting Being Held in Milwaukee.

The School Question, Secret Societies and the Case of Dr. McGlynn To Be Discussed.

Milwaukee, Oct. 27.—One of the most important meetings of the Catholic bishops of the Milwaukee province that has been held in many years opened this morning in the Archepiscopal residence attached to the cathedral, under the presidency of Archbishop Katzer. Those present include Bishop Berkin, of Marquette, Mich., Bishop Schebach, of Lacrosse, and Bishop Messner of Green Bay.

The conference is being held in accordance with the letter recently issued by His Holiness, the Roman pontiff, instructing the American Metropolitans to hold consultations with their suffragan bishops preliminary to the meeting of the Archepiscopal Synod, or conference of archbishops,and which, by command of the pope, will assemble in New York three weeks hence.

To-day Archbishop Katzer will hear suggestions and needs of the ecclesiastical associate for the purpose of presenting the same to the consideration of the higher body.

Among other things to be considered are the attitude of the church toward secret societies, the most feasible method of increasing the efficiency and membership of the parochial schools, the general character of the educational exhibit at the world's fair, and other matters of importance. The case of Dr. McGlynn is also to be talked over at the conference of archbishops, which will be asked to take it into consideration.

Undertakers Who Formed a Trust.

They Get Into Civil Court First and Then the Criminal Court.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 27.—Wrarants were issued to-day at the instance of U. S. District Attorney J. Wady for the arrest of 58 Kansas undertakers, charged with a violation of the federal anti-trust law. The undertakers in the principal towns in the state have for more than two years been organized into what they termed a protective association. Wholesale dealers in undertakers' supplies were notified that if they sold goods to any one in Kansas not a member of the organization they would be boycotted. J. M. Knight attempted to start an underaking establishment in Topeka, and after perfecting all arrangements attempted to buy a stock. This he was unable to do because of the association's influence. He then brought suit against the association in the United States court and recovered damage.

Facts brought out in that suit warranted the district attorney in bringing criminal action against all members of the association.

Marshal Walker had 58 warrants placed in his hands to-day and he has sent out his entire force of deputies to serve them. The leading undertakers in Kansas City, Kas., Topeka, Newton, Arkansas City, Lawrence, Garnett, Eldorado, Junction City, Salina, Emporia, Parsons, Lincoln, Ft. Scott, Coffeyville, Sedan, McPherson, Anthony, Columbus, Troy, Seneca, Larned, Hutchinson, Abilene, Iola, Kinsley, Concordia, Olathe and Great Bend are on the list.

PETER JACKSON IS HERE

He Will Challenge Champion Corbett.

Every Evidence That the Black Man Will Not Have to Hunt Very Long.

New York, Oct. 27.—Peter Jackson, the well known colored pugilist, arrived in this city last night on the White Star liner Teutonic.

In speaking of his plans to a reporter of the United Press he said that he intended to challenge Jim Corbett at once, and would keep right after the Californian, for he owed him a match.

He was told of the offer of the Coney Island Athletic club of a purse of $25,-000 for a meeting between him and Corbett, but would not say as to his acceptance of it until after he had consulted the Coney Island people himself.

He said he had a good offer from the National club, of London, a purse of $20,-000, but he would fight wherever he was assured of fair play and the most money.

Jackson added that he was not very much surprised at the result of the big mill at New Orleans, but he had expected Sullivan to make a better showing.

TWO MATCHES.

The California Club Is Right in the Swim.

San Francisco, Oct. 27.—The California club directors have made two matches to take place within the coming two months. George Dawson, of Australia, and "Doc" O'Connell, of Boston, welter weights, were signed to fight for $3,000 purse, the event to take place either during the latter part of November or the first part of December. The division of the purse was left to themselves. Both men must tip the scales at 140 pounds at 3 p. m. on the day of the contest.

Johnny Van Heest and Solly Smith were signed to fight for a purse of $2,000, $400 to the loser, on the evening of December 29. The men will fight at 118 pounds. Van Heest recently fought a draw with George Siddons, and has designs on George Dixon for the featherweight championship. He stands five feet two inches in height, but on account of his stocky build would never be taken for more than five feet. He is 22 years years of age and has a good record.

GROVER CLEVELAND

Addresses Members of the Buffalonian Club.

An Enthusiastic Reception in New York City.

His Old Time Associates and Friends Call on the Next President of the United States.

New York, Oct. 27.—The reception at the Imperial hotel last night given to ex-President Cleveland by the Buffalonian Cleveland club, was attended by 200 persons, consisting of members of the club and a few invited guests. Mr. Cleveland's arrival was the occasion of great applause, and all those present remained standing until the speeches of the evening, which lasted for almost an hour, were over. After a brief preliminary speech calling the meeting to order the guest of the evening was introduced as one whose name created enthusiasm even when mentioned in a republican meeting. Mr. Cleveland spoke as follows:

"I hope it is not necessary for me to tell you how much I enjoy being with you to-night, and how exceedingly gratifying is every reflection suggested by this occasion. Its best and most pleasant feature is, of course, the presence here of many old Buffalo friends, which recalls to my mind incidents and associations which have been and will always continue to be the things most carefully kept by memory for my delight.

"You have among you one at least who, 32 years ago, belonged with me to a democratic club which had in hand the task of electing Stephen A. Douglas to the presidency. Many a night we marched side by side, in yellow capes, and bearing torches. I do not believe that either of us supposed for a moment that our candidate could be defeated, provided we marched far enough and made noise enough, and had enough of kerosene oil running from our torches down our backs. I am thus reminded of a time when my participation in the activities of politics meant enthusiasm for a man or a cause, a great deal of excitement and noise, plenty of hope and confidence, generally followed by bitter disappointment soon forgotten. I hardly think you will be surprised to know that in 1892, when my relations to politics has a rather more sober complexion, I recall my share in the campaign of 1860, and all its work and disappointment with comparative pleasure. Others do the marching and shouting now, but I believe they are enjoying the campaign more than I am. Somehow the thing looks more serious to me now, and I cannot help thinking that I am rather more closely related to the present campaign than I was when Douglas ran for president.

"Another of your members was a student in my Buffalo law office. This reminds me of the days when in the city of Buffalo I attempted by the practice of law to obtain as honest a living as was possible in that business. Those were pleasant days, and I do not mind confessing that they were badly exchanged, so far as my personal comfort and enjoyment are concerned, for the perplexities and troubles of public life. I must not neglect to mention the further gratifying circumstance that the appearance of the name of this member upon your rolls indicates the probability that his politics has improved as well as his knowledge of laws since he was associated with me in Buffalo.

"I knew another young man when I lived in Buffalo, who was a jolly, pleasant fellow, but who, from a democratic standpoint, and especially from the standpoint of democratic defeat, was one of the most good-naturedly aggravating republicans in the city. I want to emphasize the dominance of his good nature and good-heartedness over his former partisanship by mentioning the fact that I have lately received from him, as your secretary, an invitation to join this organization, which I understand to be pledged to the support of a democratic candidate for the presidency.

"At the head of your club I find a comparatively new acquaintance, whose generosity as a friend, and whose success in business was fully explained to me when I found that he had formerly resided in Buffalo and had been educated in her public schools.

"I will not refer to the other members of your organization whose presence here brings to mind pleasing incidents of former days, but will do myself the justice to say that my sensations are such at this moment, and in the atmosphere of personal friendliness that pervades this occasion, that I nearly forgot that this organization has political plans and purposes. I am glad, however, that when these plans and purposes occur to my mind they merely add to my grateful appreciation of your personal kindness. You encourage me to believe that though you have associated together in support of certain political principles, the fact that an old Buffalo friend is in trouble on account of his political opinions and needs your help has something to do with your organized political activity.

"Therefore, while my heart is full of gratitude to the friends I see about me, I cannot forbear the suggestion of my belief that your organization not only demonstrates your personal friendship for an old townsman, but it also indicates that you are fully alive to your duty as good citizens. . You know how devoted I am to the principles of the democratic party, and your knowledge of me will, I am sure, acquit me of insincerity when I express the opinion that the result of the pending political struggle means more to our country and our people than any in which you or I have ever been engaged. On one side the claim is defiantly and arrogantly announced that the functions of our government may be used directly for the benefit of certain special interests, with at best a very remote regard to the welfare of the masses of the people. In opposition to this an appeal is made to our fellow citizens to hold fast to the doctrine that our government should at all times be administered directly for them, and that they should not be obliged to receive as their share of the blessings of the free government they maintain, the small portion which may filter through to them in the process of making special beneficiaries rich. In other words, the democratic party is insisting upon the honest application of the rule that a government by the people should be a government of the people.

"It is as needless as it is foreign to my purpose to discuss, in detail, before those so thoughtful and intelligent as my Buffalo friends, the differences between the political principles and purposes presented to our people for their approval. I only desire to assure you that the gratification which your personal attachment affords is greatly enhanced by the consciousness that it is the attachment of those who are thoughtful and patriotic, and by the conviction that the support you give in an organized way to your old townsman cannot create in your minds the least suspicion that such support is in the aid of principles at all inconsistent with your highest duty as American citizens.

"It only remains for me to say that, whatever may be the result of the pending campaign, I shall always remember as its most pleasing incident, this occasion, and the evidence it furnishes of the consideration and devotion of the Buffalo friends I see here about me."

Mr. Cleveland was followed by Lieut. Gov. Sheehan, who spoke of the certainty of New York's going for the democratic nominee.

Complaints As to the City Gas Supply.

Reasons Attributed by Manager Heston, Who Promises That the Trouble Will Soon be Remedied.

"You can say we have no gas in the city lines," said a lady in a business office this morning, as she sat trying to write with cold fingers.

In one of the public offices a gentleman said: "The gas went out at our house at half-past 7 this morning. We didn't have a little gas, but none at all."

These and other similar complaints led a Bee to visit the offices of the natural gas trustees and ask Manager Heston, "What's the matter with the gas supply? People are kicking about it."

"There's the gas," said the imperturable manager, pointing to the fire in his office. "You can judge for youself."

"That appears to be all right. What's the size of that burner?"

"It's a No. 3.

"There are larger burners that do not give nearly the flame that does. How do you account for it?"

"Well," said the manager, "the supply depends a good deal on the distance from the source of supply, those nearest having better, and those more remote worse fires."

"That rule doesn't apply to all cases; for there are poor fires not very far from that one."

"It may be that this is on the direct pipe which runs some distance and comes back again. You can see here"—going to a map. "Here's the Y at Bowman street, where the gas comes in; and just in proportion as you get away from that point the less force there is to the gas, and so it will be till these high-pressure lines in the city can be forced full of gas, and then the pumps and regulators will supply the whole city. There are two 8-inch lines crossing the river there, the 12-inch line ending a little way from a point opposite the Bowman street reducing station. There is one 8-inch line crossing the river at Adams street; but the whole supply comes in at Bowman street. If anybody in the same radius doesn't have as good gas as we have here, it is probably on account of small pipes, or some defect, or because the system is not completed."

"How about those pumps?"

"The contract states that they are to be in operation by November 27. Foundations are in for three pumps and for the boilers. Two boilers are set and two are being set to-day, and the other three are on the way, making seven boilers. The pump building is all under cover, and ready for the pumps to go right in. The pumps have not arrived, but they expect to have the first one going during the first week in November, though the contract doesn't provide that the station be in operation till the 27th. They can run the pumps separately, and will begin with one."

Findlay Prepared to Drain Toledo's Gas Territory.

A gentleman who was at Findlay yesterday, said this morning: "One of the gas trustees then told me that Findlay has drilled 20 wells this summer, and 12 of them are right in our field, and our trustees haven't drilled a well there. He tells me they have about 1,600 acres in a new field, off to the southeast of Findlay, from which they expect to begin to supply, after they get all they can out of the Stewartsville field, before we get our pumps going. They have a good supply at Findlay, and are furnishing factories. They have paid off $40,000 of the indebtedness for their gas plant."

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

The Henrietta Monroe Entertainment.

Was a Pronounced Success—Notes and Announcements.

The oyster supper and literary entertainment given last evening in Memorial hall annex by the Henrietta L. Monroe union, was a success numerically, financially and socially.

The supper was furnished by the members of the union and their friends, and was delicious and bountiful.

The reception committee did good work, as indeed did the entire force of ladies having charge, and to their unfailing good nature and indefatigable efforts is due the credit for the evening's success.

At 9 o'clock the entertainment was opened by Master Harry Stevens, in a neat little address, setting forth the mission of the white ribboners.

A piano solo was then executed in a pleasing manner by Miss Clara Hoagland, and at its conclusion, Miss Bessie Snell recited "Bob's Bicycle," and was obliged to respond to an encore, giving, with fine effect, a touching temperance selection.

Miss Ella Frey rendered a beautiful vocal solo, and was followed by Master Harold Pugh, in a recitation.

Miss Mary Hutchinson recited charmingly a tale of intemperance and woe, after which Mr. Permar and family delighted the audience with their musical specialties.

The last and best number was the singing of Mrs. Hattie Allen. Mrs. Allen possesses a strong, sweet voice, and her rendition of two beautiful and difficult vocal solos was a rare treat to the music lovers present.

The members of the union feel encouraged for further effort by the success of their first entertainment.

The committee of arrangements on the place of holding the social meeting of the Political Equality club is meeting this afternoon with Mrs. Quigley, on Tenth street.

The Colloquial club meets to-morrow (Friday) afternoon with Mrs. Rosa L. Segur, 916 Broadway. The paper on What Shall We Wear? will be read by Mrs. Dutton.

The Isabella Circle will meet November 15, with Mrs. J. A. Rooney, 835 Superior street.

VULGAR TOURISTS.

A San Francisco Journal Scores Them Unmercifully, but Justly.

A party of tourists have just been reported to the United States district attorney at Los Angeles for having mutilated the big tree "Gen. Sherman," in the Sequoia National park, by cutting their vandalistic and idotic names thereon They ought to be made an example of, and the severest punishment possible should be meted out to them, says the San Francisco News Letter.

Just think of the infinitesimalness of soul and the gigantic self-conceit that can prompt a human being to insult one of these forest giants by carving his own puny, insignificant name upon its thousand-year-old trunk. If nothing else can be done, those names should be publised far and wide, that popular execration may be bestowed in fullest measure upon the he and she fools who thus dare to mutilate these noblest specimens of nature's handiwork. These are of like ilk with those other idiots who have the unspeakable cheek to carve their names on the walls of the Yosemite, or scribble them on the Washington monument, reckless of the indubitable fact that none but the name of fools are ever seen in such places, and for mortal man to presume to thus link his own puny, insignificant personality with the great things of this earth is to write himself down as an egregious ass. Out upon such traversties wearing the name of men. Their identity should be given the widest notoriety, that they may receive the contempt which they have so well earned.

ABOUT WOMEN.

Interesting Facts in Regard to Their Peculiarities.

In Many Ways They Have More Nerve Than Men.

Strange Compound of Timidity and Courage.

Women are nervous.

There is no doubt of that, but are they more nervous than men? The nervous system of women is much more delicate, more highly strung, more finely tensioned than that of men. This renders them capable of higher pleasures and deeper sorrows than is possible with man. Men have a greater brute bravery, more intrepidity, boldness and daring, but women, weaker physically by far, greatly excel men in moral courage, spirit, fortitude, patience, and endurance of pain and grief.

Suffering or pain that a woman would scarcely heed will often make a big, strong man howl. Surgeons tell us that women will readily suffer pain in the endurance of operations which nine men out of ten would find unbearable. Men always make the most nervous invalids.

From this it will be seen that women are strange compounds of weakness and strength in regard to their nerves.

It is a fact, nevertheless, that women are nervous.

But it is because their nerves have become weakened and prostrated.

They are not well; something is wrong with them and they must have a renewal of nerve strength, power and vigor.

A case in point was that of Mrs. Lila C. Root, who lives at 36 Elm street, New Bedford, Mass. Naturally endowed with strong and steady nerves, she was brought to such a weak condition by disease that she almost lost control of her nerves, even going so far as to often think of taking her own life to end her sufferings.

She says in speaking of her case:

"My kidneys were in a terrible state. I had awful pains in the back and side, and could not sleep at night.

"My headache was a source of great annoyance, and I suffered much at certain periods.

"Why, I felt so miserable that I often thought I would take my own life.

"But I at last took that wonderful medicine—Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now I am well. I cannot speak too highly of this great remedy, for it cured me of my terrible complaints. I deem it my duty to say that I think it is the best medicine in the world, and I thank God for directing me to its use."

We have no doubt that many readers of our paper, whose nerves are weak, whose blood is poor, who have stomach, kidney or liver complaints, or who feel tired, prostrated and run down in health, will accept the above as directing them to use the same wonderful medicine which effected such a marvellous cure in Mrs. Root's case. We have moreover, no hesitation, if our advice and guidance is asked in the matter, to urge our suffering people to follow her example and use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is especially valuable and sure of cure for women with weak nerves, insomnia or female complaints, weakness, etc.

We furthermore know it to be perfectly harmless to use as it is purely vegetable. It is within reach of all, as druggists keep it for $1. It is the prescription and discovery of the eminent Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York, who is so wonderfully successful in curing all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, and who can be consulted free, personally or by letter. If you will use this great remedy you will be made well and your weak nerves become strong again.

The Sandlight Pulled Off.

A Disgusted Donator.

Now, the Fourth of July, or such a day as that, is made for that kind of thing; but elections ought to be for earnest work and not so much show." Work on the foundation will begin next week, and the building will be pushed rapidly, to try and allow of its occupation within eight months.

In Justice to Mr. G. E. Hause.

The Bee, like all other newspapers, is liable to sometimes publish matters in its telegraphic columns which are not and cannot be given full investigation by correspondents before sending in the information to us, and in such a case a mistake is the result. This proves to have been true in regard to a paragraph published in the Bee on the 19th of last December, which reflected seriously upon the character of Mr. Geo. E. Hause, formerly of Fostoria, but now residing in Toledo. The Bee is satisfied, after a thorough examination, that an injustice was then done Mr. Hause, and that the statements referred to were not true. He is highly spoken of by those who have known him for years, and his past conduct shows him to be a sober, industrious gentleman. The Bee cheerfully takes this occasion to correct the error and repair the wrong done Mr. Hause and those most intimately related to him.

A Splendid Institution.

This can be said of the Central Ohio Insurance company, which recently located in Toledo and at once commenced to extend their business. While established in Toledo less than three months, the company reports a wonderful growth of business, and say that it is far beyond their expectations. In fact, it has become imperative that more room be secured, and the company now occupies six rooms on the third floor of the Bee building, where they have as fine suites of offices as can be found in the country. The officers of the company are: L. L. Smith, president; E. W. Buck, vice-president; S. A. Court, secretary and treasurer; Lincoln Smith, assistant secretary; W. T. Myers, general agent, and Chas. H. Towson, adjuster, which is a sufficient guarantee for its continued growth and prosperity. They have also arranged for and will soon receive two more companies of substantial and prominent character, to aid them to carry their large business, and Messrs. Smith and associates will manage them with ability and success. The Bee, in common with other business interests of Toledo, heartily welcomes the new company to this city.

WOMAN'S BUILDING COMMITTEE

To Meet at the Bee Editorial Rooms.

Saturday afternoon the Woman's Building committee will meet in the Bee editorial rooms to report on the progress made and prepare plans for the winter's work.

The ladies who have the matter in charge do not propose to let it die out for want of a little enthusiasm, and they ask every member to be present with fresh ideas, ar at least with a determination to work.

TRADES UNIONISM.

The Carpenters Considering New Working Rules.

Revised working rules adopted by the district council were considered at the regular meeting of the Carpenters' union last night, and generally commended. The financial secretary presented a report that showed the finances to be in excellent condition. The committee upon the formation of a new union in East Toledo reported progress. The names have been received of a number of carpenters who desire to go in as charter members, and by next meeting it is confidently expected everything will be ready to send for a charter.

The painters and decorators have everything ready for their ball to-night in Clark's hall. The prize selected for the best lady dancer is a neat one. The members of the union are, very naturally, delighted over their second success in doing away with an excess of apprentices, P. C. Eichenberg, of Adams street, having dispensed with his extra "cubs," rather than have his "jours" walk out, as they were instructed to do by the union had the matter not been rectified.

The union tinners and stone-masons held well attended meetings last night, and discussed matters of interest to their respective trades.

The subordinate organizations are notified to elect delegates to the twelfth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held in Independence hall, Philadelphia, beginning December 12. The delegate of the United Polishers' International Union is H. J. Eikhoff, of Detroit.

The Markets To-Day.

The receipts of wheat at Toledo to-day are 53,152 bu. less than on the corresponding Thursday in 1891.

The receipts at seven western points are 21,181 bu. in excess of 1891. The northwest receipts are 182,986 bu. less, and the receipts at five other points are 202,167 bu. more than in 1891.

There is very little to be said about the grain markets, and really nothing that is new or interesting. It is not interesting, that English markets are so weak, and dull and lower for wheat, but it is true, all the same.

But dry weather continues over the west and there is some solicitude about the growing wheat, which, with the low prevailing price, checks much further break in prices. To-day the wheat market has been weak, and while the decline is not important, the bears have had the best of it all day, and at close December was 7-8c lower in Chicago.

Corn has been well maintained under the conditions of the wheat market, and close with a loss of 1-4 to 1-2c. Oats are alos lower at Chicago.

Foreign markets are reported closing lower for wheat.

In New York, October wheat closed at 75 3-4c a loss of 1-2c, December at 87 1-2c a loss of 3-4c, May at 84 3-8c a loss of 3-4c, October corn at 50c a loss of 3-8c, May at 52c a loss of 1-4c, October oats at 35c a loss of 1-8c.

In Chicago December wheat closed at 72 3-4c a loss of 7-8c, May at 78 5-8c a loss of 3-4c, October corn at 41 5-8c a loss of 3-8c, May at 45 7-8c a loss of 1-4c, December oats at 30 1-2c a loss of 1-4c.

In Toledo business in the aggregate about corresponds with yesterday and previous days.

It cannot be represented as anything but a dull and declining market. Wheat futures and cash wheat closed 3-4c lower. On the call November wheat sold at 72 1-2c and May at 80c. On the regular board December sold at 74c and closed at 73 1-2c. May sold at 79 3-4c and closed at 1-2c.

Cash wheat was dull, and 3-4c lower at close. No. 2 soft sold at 72c, and closed at 71 1-2c. No. 3 soft at 63 1-2c and closed at 63c. Sales in L. S. at 65c. No. 4 soft at 57 1-2c. Rejected No. 1 at 61 1-2c; No. 2 at 51c; mixed No. 2 at 68 1-2c; No. 3 at 62c; hard No. 2 at 68c.

Corn, No. 2 about 41 1-2; No. 3 at 40 1-2 to 40; No. 4 at 37; No. 3 yellow at 41.

Clover seed was nearly as active as yesterday, and on the whole about steady in price; October sold at $6.60; November at $6.57 1-2 to $6.60; December at $6.62 1-2; January at $6.67 1-2; February, $6.75; No. 2 at $6.45 to $6.47 1-2.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 599,210 bu. and at five other western points 719,945 bu.; total, 1,319,155 bu. On the corresponding Thursday in 1891 the receipts at same points were 1,297,974 bu., including 782,196 bu. of northwest wheat, leaving the movement from five other western points 517,778 bu., compared with 719,945 bu. to-day.

Export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were, wheat, 285,658 bu. and flour to an aggregate of 280,000 bu.

English markets are dull and lower for wheat and steady for corn.

The Depressed Price of Wheat and the Hatch Bill.

What is the true meaning of the 59,500,000 bu. of wheat in our visible supply as per the New York statement, and the 75,000,000 bu. in Bradstreet's more complete compilation? First, it means that the farmers of our country have with great unanimity pushed their surplus wheat on the market greatly in excess of the demand, and have by this rapid movement themselves deprlessed the price.

This depression in price will undoubtedly be seized upon by the supporters of the "Hatch bill," who do not look beyond the range of their eyeglasses, as the effect of speculation and dealing in futures. Nothing more unreasonable and groundless could be urged on that side of the question. Looking at it fairly, the conditions furnish the strongest argument against the suppression of trading for future delivery, or in any manner crippling that method of dealing. Capitalists have taken up this wheat and are holding it. They have sold much of it for December and May. Of course the Hatch bill permits a dealer to sell, under restrictions, if he owns the wheat, but if the deal had been hedged about, not only with proof of ownership, but with the uncertainty of the legality of the transaction on both sides of it, and the danger of arrest and fine of both buyer and seller, how could such trading have been extended to all the exchanges in this country and abroad?

Again, and of greater import still, if any restriction at all had been laid upon this buying and selling of May and other futures, in effect preventing activity, the wheat could not be placed. The daily active trading in a future is what gives it vitality and strength. Suppose this trading had been restricted by the terms of the Hatch bill, the price of wheat would have been 10c bu. lower. When will the supporters of the Hatch bill learn wisdom and business sense?

THE BLADE ON ASHLEY.

"Corrupt and shameless conduct in employing his official position to secure the appointment of a man to an important territorial office for the avowed and exclusive purpose of feathering his own nest with ill-gotten and illegal gains."—Blade, Sept. 18, 1862.

Register to-morrow.

Another registration day to-morrow. Do not miss the opportunity.

Egan discussing matters with Wayne MacVeagh is enough to make a horse laugh.

Give the gas trustees a chance to show the virtue of the pumps. Criticisms ought to be withheld for the present.

The Bowling Green meeting to be addressed by Mr. B. F. Ritchie, has been changed to Tuesday, November 2.

The golden calf that the republican papers are leading to slaughter will be served up cold after November 8.

Mr. Ashley's reception at Maumee was cold, but not so cold as will be his reception by the voters November 8.

Mr. Hudson is pursuing the even tenor of his way, making friends daily. It will be Judge Hudson after November 8.

There is consternation in the republican ranks.. The best party workers are either opposing Ashley or will not vote.

And still they come. Judge Romanzo Bunn, of the United States court of Wisconsin, has declared for Cleveland and Stevenson.

The organ on the corner retracts its vicious attack on Byron Ritchie. There are several other things the organ will have to prove or retract.

Mr. Byron Ritchie, our nominee for congress, and Mr. Frank E. Wright will address the people of Pemberville, Wood county, this evening.

The announcement that the war department has approved the new deep channel project for the lakes will be hailed with delight in marine circles.

Politics are getting pretty thick in Indiana. The big orators of both parties are in the field. Democrats are sanguine of carrying the Hoosier state.

Peter Jackson has arrived and will challenge Jim Corbett for a battle. Corbett, unlike the late champion, will not deny him a chance to show himself.

The ninth district will not send a man to congress to labor for Michigan harbor improvements. Toledo's necessities require the full time of its representative.

Voters must remember that registering last year will be of no service to make them qualified to vote in November. Every one must register on Friday or Saturday.

Gen. John P. Rea, ex-commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, has come out for Cleveland, and will add his mite toward electing the statesman.

The blacklist is an infamous system. It is a cruel and cowardly institution established to enslave free men. A vote against Ashley is a vote against blacklisting.

Harmony and hard work are the passwords at local democratic headquarters. The boys are working like beavers day and night, and the prospects of success are brilliant.

Census bulletins will not do to swear by this time. The breaks made relative to Toledo have undoubtedly been repeated as to other cities, and what stuff they must be.

The speeches being made by Hon. J. Kent Hamilton and Hon. Charles P. Griffin in the present campaign are thrilling indeed, as all who have heard them are willing to testify.

Premier Abbott will soon retire from the Canadian premiership, having grown weary of state affairs. According to the eternal fitness of things, Sir John Thompson should succeed him.

One bugle blast from Gen. Bourke Cochran, of New York, would be of great value in Toledo. Can his services be secured for an address, gentlemen of the campaign committee?

Ten years' work in congress by James M. Ashley brought $20,000 for harbor improvement. That's too slow pace for the present pushing generation. Elect Byron Ritchie, an active hustler.

The democratic county ticket is as strong as was ever nominated. The candidates are men of character and standing in the community, and would make competent officials. Elect them.

Byron Ritchie has nothing to fear from threats to assail his character. He was born and raised in Toledo, and has lived among its citizens until the present day. Assaults at this time will have no effect.

Matt Quay has given up New York state to the democrats, and the republicans are now husbanding their finances for a grand rally on election day, with the hope of buying Harrison into office again.

Senator Hill has given another evidence that he is a democrat of the true blue kind, in his denunciation of Wayne MacVeagh's political death-bed confession after 16 years of profiting under the steal of 1876.

Mr. W. H. Maher will be kept busy writing up the local republicans who have proclaimed and are proclaiming their intention to vote for Mr. Cleveland. The Bee gives him another subject to-day in the person of Mr. C. H. Pixley.

Republican papers have not been able to recount accessions to their party from the ranks of the democracy. They nursed Gen. Sickles for a time, but the battle-scarred veteran remains true to his convictions and will vote and work for Cleveland.

A substantial increase in price has been made by the trustees of the city gas plant. The patrons would probably have been as well satisfied if a rate similar to the Northwestern's had been fixed, and the proceeds applied to the betterment of the service.

Ashley's parade on Monday night was an evidence of the weakness of his cause. The gratuitous distribution of torches, flambeaus and the like, was not sufficient to bring out the party workers; they are not to be thus cajoled this time.

Mr. C. H. Pixley, in an interview published elsewhere, states tersely and fairly his reasons for supporting Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Pixley, who has been a life-long and staunch republican, is not alone by any means. They are coming over by the thousand.

Jim Ashley, Jr., declared at the nominating convention that his father and friends had no use for John Kumler, Vince Emmick, Charley Griffin and other wheel-horses, and up to date there is no evidence that these gentlemen are breaking their necks to worship at the Ashley shrine.

The knock-down argument of Mr. Taylor, published in this issue, should open the eyes of the intelligent voter to the often-repeated truth that the tariff is a tax, which the farmer, the mechanic and the laborer generally has to pay. Mr. Taylor's letter is deserving of the careful consideration of the voter.

Lacking logical excuse for the political existence of its candidate for congress, the organ on the corner turns the vials of its wrath on democratic candidates. The column attack on Mr. Hudson in yesterday's issue can be disposed of by the simple statement that it is absolutely and wholly without foundation.

Governor Ashley finds a new generation in his "old stamping ground" in Wood county. Wood is not dealing with antiquity at present, but rather is on the alert for a man of the times. Such is Byron Ritchie, and it will be found that he will have a greater vote than the republican managers are willing to concede.

The republican organs appear to be very much disturbed about dissensions in democratic ranks. For want of better campaign material, this may do for the opposition, but it will not count for much. As a matter of fact, it may be said that the democratic organization in Lucas county was never more compact or united, as will be seen on election day.

Col. Conger is out with another interview, in which he feels very sure of President Harrison's re-election. A few months since he refused to be comforted because of the defeat of Mr. Blaine, and insisted that Ben would not come within fifty votes of a majority in the electoral college. This leads to the inquiry as to what Conger really believes.

Findlay residents are feeling good because the new city directory will allow the figuring of a population of nearly 22,000. The enterprising city has made rapid strides in the past few years, its growth being of a substantial and healthy character. It has a strong representation of active business men, and Toledo is interested enough in its prosperity to wish for the Hancock county capital continued success.

The revised edition of Mr. Ashley's Memorial hall address, published in the Commercial yesterday, was quite an improvement on the stenographic report published in the Blade the previous evening. The revised edition was "phat" for the printer at twenty cents a line, or was it twenty-five cents? It is said at republican committee headquarters that the stale matter was advertising pure and simple.

The manly and dignified campaign which Mr. P. C. Hudson's friends are making for him for common pleas judge is in strong contrast with the scandalous and disgraceful campaign which is being made for his opponent. Neither candidate is personally taking any active part, but it should be observed by all friends of justice and decency, that in one case the candidate permits a disgraceful campaign; in the other case, the candidate absolutely forbids it.

There are thirty-three members of the faculty in Amherst college at Amherst, Mass. Twenty-three of them have declared for Mr. Cleveland, signing the following document:

"With Mr. Cleveland's views on public questions we agree. We admire his courage, his constancy and his public spirit, his studious neglect of his merely personal interests where they conflict with the calls of public duty. We remember his tariff message, his pension vetoes and his letter against free silver as conspicuous instances of his disregarding personal considerations for the public good. We therefore urge our fellow-citizens to give Mr. Cleveland their hearty support."

The Bee calls the attention of the city fathers to the outrageous practice of allowing such old buildings to be moved through the streets as is now making its funereal march out Madison street. Structures which smack of the vintage of 1801 should be torn down or burned; they are of little value to the people who own them, while taxpayers along the line of the route will have to pay many times the building's worth to repair the pavement, walks, etc., to say nothing about the destruction of trees, which money cannot replace. It is time to call a halt.

HOT STUFF.

Mr. Thomas A. Taylor's Tart and Timely Reply

To Mr. Maher's Hari-Kari Style of Logic.

Wheat, Wool and Cotton Drop 25 Per Cent. Owing to the McKinley Bill—The Interests of the Farmer and Mechanic Identical.

I am thankful, Willie, that my last effort did not cause your final dissolution ("heart disease.") We need thee e'en nigh a fortnight yet, to help make votes for Cleveland. I was not mad, Willie, I was only trying to set you right before the public.

Mr. Maher continues his high tariff argument, but does not seem to make much headway on the subject.

He reminds us very much of two railroad trains trying to pass each other upon the same track, running at full speed in opposite directions. He not only runs up against himself but he runs up against himself hard.

For example, in one place he poses before the farmer as the farmer's friend and tries to explain the benefits of protection to the farming community. In another place Mr. Maher poses before the mechanic as the mechanic's friend and tells the mechanic that if he votes for Cleveland "flour will advance." The farmer knows full well that an advance in flour brings an advance in wheat. I suppose Mr. Maher imagines that the farmer will not see what he says to the mechanic and contra, that the mechanic will not see what he says to the farmer. But as this is a reading and thinking campaign it occurs to me if Locke does not come home quickly and call him off that by the 8th of November Mr. Maher will have all the farmers voting for Cleveland and some few mechanics voting for Harrison. But as the farmers outnumber the mechanics the result of his efforts will be Cleveland's election. We believe also that there are thousands of mechanics bright enough to see that a policy which operates against the farmer operates also against the industrial community, as a whole. In another place Mr. Maher tells us that protection protects and furnishes us our opportunity to hold up our home industries. In another place he tells us that the effect of the McKinley bill was not to put up the price of foreign scissors, but that instead the foreigner sold his scissors at the old price and adjusted the difference at home.

Pray tell us, Mr. Maher, if the tariff does not protect, and you proved this when you made the scissors deal, of what benefit is it to the mechanics? But enough as to the railroad collision arguments.

Now let us see how the farmer has fared since the McKinley bill went into effect. We shall draw our conclusions from facts.

Since the McKiney bill became a law wheat has declined and is now selling at a lower price than at any time in 25 years, because the high protective policy due to foreign retaliation operates against, not only an extension, but even against a holding of what trade we now have in foreign markets in wheat and its products. Mr. Maher tries to explain the low prices for wheat by holding out the idea that there is an overproduction this year. But let us see what the statisticians say about this. Beerbohm, of London, and the Liverpool Corn Trade News corroborates his statement, says, that the world's crop of wheat this year is 48,000,000 of bushels less than last year and practically the same as two years ago. These are both highly credited statisticians and they would have no object in magnifying a shortage, as that would operate against the interests of their own countrymen who are importers of wheat and its products.

Since the McKinley bill became a law the price of cotton has declined to a point lower than at any time since the war, because our high protective policy has forced Great Britain to stimulate an increased production of cotton in her far eastern dependencies.

Since the McKinley bill became a law the price of wool has declined from 10 to 20 per cent. and is now as low as at any time in the past 25 years, due to the fact that the high protective policy handicaps the woolen manufacturer in his importations of foreign wools for blending purposes, forcing him to take off from the price of home grown wool what the high duty obliges him to add to his imported invoices.

Will the farmer support the so-called protective party under these existing circumstances? We think not. On the contrary, we believe they will jostle each other in their struggle to get to the polls to vote for Cleveland and tariff reform.

THOS. A. TAYLOR.

Our Hats Are Off.

The Toledo Bee has changed over into the ownership hands of Messrs. F. P. Chapin and A. Stuart—and good luck attend them. The chance for beating Ashley, the boodling railway magnate, for congress, is thereby added to, and the democrats of Lucas are more confident of their general strength than before.—Sandusky Journal.

In vain the eyes are filled with light;
In vain the cheek with beauty glows,
Unless the teeth are pure and white,
Unless the breath is like the rose;
And SOZODONT alone supplies
These beauties that we all so prize.

WILD CAT MONEY.

Much Ado About Nothing.

The republican party started out to make the tariff and silver the issues of the campaign.

The McKinley theory that the country could be taxed into wealth was boldly proclaimed and so sure were they that in the government's power of taxation was discovered the Philosopher's Stone that changed everything to gold that they defended lavish expenditures as it gave the greater opportunity to make the people rich by taxation.

They have, however, discovered that the plain people of the country do not believe in their fine spun theory of making them rich by taxation. And they are now like the fellow who had the wolf by the ears calling for somebody to help let the d—d creature go.

They took hold of silver with the same zeal and confidence, but soon found it a boomerang and that the sensible and substantial business men of the country regarded their present silver law which provides for the issue of $4,500,000 of full legal tender paper on the deposite of $4,500,000 worth of property constantly declining in value as the wildest and most reckless piece of legislation ever placed on the statute books of any civilized and enlightened nation, which its author himself is compelled to abandon as absolutely indefensible.

Driven from both positions they have now with one consent fastened upon a declaration in the democratic platform in favor of the repeal of the 10 per cent. tax on state bank paper and with hair erect and eye protruding proclaim that the country will be ruined by a flood of wildcat money in case of democratic success, and this in the face of the fact that the democratic platform contains the old Jacksonian and Bentonian declaration in favor of the equalization of our gold and silver coins and the free coinage of both, the first absolutely sound statement on the subject in any national platform since the war and the fact that Grover Cleveland is the democratic candidate for president.

Think of it! The appalling danger that Grover Cleveland of all men in America, as president, is to recommend or sign a bill to flood the country with wildcat money.

And to relieve us from this appalling danger to which Sherman devoted a large part of his speech to the ticketholders to his meeting at Chicago what do they propose?

They all admit that the national bank system must end with the payment of the bonds, but our own little Charlie Foster, who has suddenly developed into a great national financier, proposes not to pay them, but to get our English cousins, who hold most of them, to take in exchange 2 per cent. 50 year bonds and to surrender to them for that period the sovereign government function of issuing money for our people, but Sherman goes beyond the Oscola platform and proposes absolute fiat money. The mountains labor and these ridiculous mice are born. Only think of the great republican party that once dealt with questions of human rights and national unity so frightened past the use of its senses at this bugaboo of their own imagination as to be ready to surrender one of the highest functions of government to a syndicate of British bondholders or to go even beyond the presnt wretched silver law or the Oscola platform and to issue legal tender paper with neither silver, nor wheat nor corn behind it.

To one like myself, who, when scarcely more than a boy, was a member of the convention that organized the republican party and saw the great men who composed it, and knew the great principles that moved them, it is a most pitiful sight to see that great party with nothing left but McKinley with his theory of taxing people rich and Sherman and Foster proposing such expedients to prevent Cleveland ruining the country with wildcat money and Dan Martin and Mat Quay in New York to preserve the purity of elections. How are the mighty fallen!

H. T. NILES.

Toledo, Oct. 25, 1892.

OUR OHIO EXCHANGES.

Bayonets and Votes.

A bayonet behind every ballot would mean increased tariff taxes behind every republican victory.—Zanesville Signal.

A Pertinent Question.

Ex-Speaker Reed is coming to Ohio to tell the people how to vote, and he will no doubt explain why his majority in Maine in September was only 1,800 as against 4,800 two years ago.—Tiffin Advertiser.

Truth Brought Home.

Findlay has many highly protected manufacturing industries, but we have been unable to find a single laborer who has received any part of the "protection." The manufacturers and trusts pocket the "protection," while the laborers get the humbug. Will they vote to continue this state of affairs?—Findlay Courier.

Blow for Blow.

Blaine will not vote for Harrison this year. He failed to register and now could not vote for anybody no matter how greatly he desired to do so. Republicans are anxiously waiting for him to explain that he paired off for the November as well as the September election, but so far they have waited in vain.—Fostoria Times.

They Will Have It.

The desire for tariff reform and honest government has become so firmly embedded in the minds of the toiling millions of the United States that neither the enormous corruption fund which Mr. Carter and his friends have raised, nor anything which Mr. Blaine might say or do at this time, can change one iota the inevitable defeat at the polls which awaits the republican party on November 8.—Upper Sandusky Union.

The Right Spirit.

There is no longer any doubt that the republican managers are seriously alarmed about Ohio. The feeling among farmers, workingmen and the colored people is such as to afford ample reason for apprehension among such of the republican party leaders as can sit down and make a mathematical calculation. There was a time when the republican party owned Ohio and gave little concern as to results, but that day has passed, and the best speakers and the finest workers to be secured are being rushed into the state, not to hold the heretofore safe majority, but to save Ohio. Montgomery county will do her share toward placing Ohio in the democratic column. Mark the prediction.—Dayton Times.

AND STILL THEY COME

Another Convert to the Cause of Tariff Reform.

Why C. H. Pixley Will Not Vote for Harrison.

He Gives Strong, Logical Reasons for His Conversion to the True Political Faith.

C. H. Pixley, of the firm of H. M. Pixley & Son, 106 Summit street, has been a life-long and dyed-in-the-wool republican.

He has been, but is not any more.

He is out now for Cleveland and gives strong reasons for the faith that is in him.

He was a little reticent when approached by a Bee this morning, but finally consented to say something.

"I don't want," he said, "to air my political views in the papers, though I don't care if all the world knows them. I am for Cleveland and will vote for him. This much I will say."

"Have you any objections, Mr. Pixley, to give your reasons for your change of heart?"

"No, and yet of what interest will they be to the public? The conversion has been gradual, but it is sincere. The block I stumbled over is the tariff. I cannot see for the life of me where a high protective tariff benefits any but a few manufacturers. I remember hearing Mr. McKinley speak of the blessings that would accrue to the farmer and the public generally from his bill. What is the result?

"Wheat is lower than it has been in 25 years.

"Wool is lower than it has been since the war.

"And so it is with almost every farming product.

"I have heard good strong republicans swear at the results of the McKinley bill. I was in a wholsale store not long since and the proprietor, a good republican, too, was swearing mad at some of the impositions. He spoke of linen crash as an illustration. At the request of the manufacturers and with the understanding that prices would not be advanced for two years, the tariff was about doubled in the McKinley bill. This wholesaler showed me a circular from the crash manufacturers notifying the trade, thta on and after a certain date the price would be advanced. This price was just a point below where the foreign article could be profitably sold here. And yet they tell us that the foreigner pays the tax—but I could spend a week giving you reasons for my conversion."

"And you will vote for Mr. Cleveland?"

"Most certainly if I am alive. I consider Cleveland head and shoulders above any statesman in the country. He is honest and able and made the best executive this country has had in 25 years. Yes, sir, I am for Grover Cleveland."

Mr. Pixley is only one of hundreds of republicans who will vote for Cleveland and tariff reform.

She Will Be in Line.

There is an excellent opportunity to carry Ohio for Grover Cleveland. New recruits are flocking into the democratic fold from every locality. If each democrat in the state votes November 8, prospects are flattering for Ohio to be added to the long list of democratic states.—Defiance News.

A CHANGED CIRCULAR.

Some Republican Campaign Committeemen Had to Blush.

The republican campaign committee has been sending out pink circulars addressed "To the Republican Voters of Toledo;" and eulogizing Jim Ashley; but there are so many supposed republican voters who will not support—but will oppose—Ashley, that a number of the circulars, supposed to be confidential, got into the wrong hands. They are signed, "Republican Campaign Committee;" but whoever got them up did well to have them printed on "blush" paper; for pure white would about turn rosy at being compelled to bear such fulsome flattery. Nor was it alone the paper that blushed in the carrying out of this plan of appeal to "every man who affiliated with the republican party." A few of the "dodgers" sent out at first are somewhat different from those issued later. Somebody grew ashamed of the "original" copy. It could not have been Ashley: so that the presumption is that it was members of the committee, who could not stand some of the worst drivel in the composition. They swallowed enough in agreeing to the rev se.

The first change made was to raise the name of Ashley from capitals in the original to a line of appropriate "job" type.

The sentence reading: "A vote for Ashley is a vote for protection, a vote for his opponent is a vote for free trade of the Frank Hurd stripe," had the last five words deleted.

Another sentence read: "Mr. Ashley will be a national figure in the House of Representatives, if elected, while his competitor would be an unnoticed unit in the throng of small-fry congressmen."

Ye gods! What wonder the committee kicked on such idiotic adulation. There appears to have been some controversy as to changing this; but finally this compromise was made:

"Our nominee will be a national figure in the House of Representatives, and will at once take a prominent position."

There is still seen in it the influence of Ashley over the committeemen, poor fellows; but they did succeed in getting rid of that comparison with the "throng of small-fry congressmen. How Jim Southard must want to kick himself every night of his life for any suspicion of idolatry of Ashley!

The next change was in a sentence alluding to Ashley taking a "place" in the house. The word was changed to "position," the suggestion being too plain that "place" is what Slippery Jim is after—as was Archimedes with his lever—so that he can move something to his own advantage.

The last change was that of a reference to Byron Ritchie as "an obscure and unkown man," into the phrase, "a comparatively unknown man." He has thus improved rapidly, even in the minds of the republican executive committee; and he has been bravely advancing in the knowledge, and appreciation, of the public ever since the campaign began.

In congress he will represent his district, and be known as a better representative than, or could be, James M. Ashley, whose failure as a congressman, history as a territorial governor and reputation as a railway president are but too well known to allow of honest and patriotic citizens of either party voting for his election to any position of public trust.

ONE OF THE WORST CASES EVER REPORTED.

Mrs. Myers' Hand Amputated. Her Life Saved.

The case of Mrs. Edward Myers, of Athens, N. Y., furnishes an apt illustration of a woman's power of endurance. This lady had been treated for months in the usual way for Erysipelas of the hand, without benefit. Not until her hand had become a mass of IT putrified flesh, and her life despaired of, did she turn to Dr. Kennedy, proprietor of FAVORITE REMEDY, for help.

He at once informed her that he could save her life, but that it was impossible to save the hand—it must be amputated.

SAVED She received this terrible intelligence quietly, declined to take ether, stipulating merely to hold her husband's hand during the operation, and underwent the painful process without moving a muscle or uttering a groan.

Dr. Kennedy then gave Favorite HER Remedy, which drove the poisonous disease out of her system, cleansed the blood, and prevented the return of the disease, and she now lives and rejoices in her great deliverance.

Had Dr. Kennedy been called at any previous stage of the disease he would have at once prescribed Favorite Remedy and LIFE Mrs. Myers would not have had to undergo this terrible ordeal, as it would have saved her hand.

Are you reader, troubled with Erysipelas or any eruption of the skin, it may be Erysipelas in its incipient stage—don't trifle with it a moment, but use Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, it will cure you, for it is

A HEBREW DOCUMENT

That Has a Republican Flavor, But Favors Democracy,

Is Being Distributed in Toledo by Moxie.

Somehow or Other It Is a Strangly Mixed Affair and a Good Joke on the Republicans Who Got It Out.

Yesterday every Hebrew in the city received a pamphlet that, to the ordinary American, looked as if it had been written in hieroglyphics with a charred stick by the head librarian of the lake dwellers in the year 2000 B. C. The characters in which this document is printed are Hebrew and the language German. To get this down to plain English was no easy matter. Moxie the general, and his aides were busy distributing them, so they had a republican flavor even to the uneducated.

A Bee called on Dr. Schreiber last evening—he is the new rabbi at the Tenth Street Temple, and asked him to decipher the writing.

"Why, this is a republican document," said the gentleman, smiling. "Let us hear what it says," and he proceeded to read.

The paper proved to be a wild, erratic jumble of misleading statements. It attempted to show by comparison the benefits accruing from a protective tariff. The compiler makes a good story for his side, but how does he make it? He compares the cost of various articles and the wages paid to laborers to-day with those paid some thirty years ago. He forgets to say anything about the great war that was going on then, and the consequent demoralized condition of the country—high prices for the necessaries of life, and hard times to boot. No; he just wanders on as if the comparison was just, and nobody would tumble to the little subterfuge.

This wonderful document, with its misleading statements, goes on to tell of the miserable pittances paid then and the fabulous salaries paid to workingmen at present.

When Dr. Schreiber reached a point in the table showing the alleged wages paid to weavers at present—he turned to the Bee and laughingly remarked:

"Well, if they make that much I guess I'll give up the ministry and turn weaver."

There is a big joke on the republicans somewhere in the document that those who are passing them out don't seem to discover. The pamphlet is headed by two pictures that with their inscriptions are entirely antagonistic to the arguments set forth in the reading matter. The cuts in question are reproduced in this article. They represent two breakfast tables. On one the jam, tea and coffee are marked taxed—fully protected. To this picture the document would point as a model breakfast table. The pinched faces of the children, the careworn features of the mother and the surly desperate aspect of the father make a charming subject.

What on earth such a picture means on a republican document is more than anyone can tell. There is an old adage that truth will out, and perhaps this is an instance the G. O. P.'s did themselves up with their own wind.

Now, look on the other picture that the republicans send out. It shows the free trader at breakfast. The articles on the table are marked free tea, free coffee, free sugar. Look at the faces and compare them with those of the protection picture.

Now comes the question, what meaning does the republican party want to convey to the Hebrews of Toledo?

They show a picture of misery marked taxed. They can't imagine for a moment that such a poverty-stricken illustration will make any friends for protection, or do they wish to lead their readers to believe that the free trade picture is the republican emblem; or don't they just know just what they want to make them believe?

The great Hebrew document still stands unexplained, a regular political paradox. If any one can decipher what the compilers wish to say, the Bee would be glad to print the news.

COSTLY ADMINISTRATION

Has Been That of President Harrison —A Comparison.

The Harrison administration is the costliest the country has ever had. It has cost the people of the country $7 a head, or $35 a family annually, as against an average annual cost of only $6.12 for Cleveland and $6.42 for the Garfield-Arthur administration. Even when compared with the Garfield-Arthur administration, which was by no means as economical as it might have been, the cost of Harrison appears in its true light as unprecedented. Here are official figures giving the total average annual expenditures, including sinking fund and postal service, and the average expenditure per capita under two republican administrations:

	Per Capita.	Per Year.
Garfield-Arthur	$6.43	$349,611,009
Harrison	7.01	449,453,104

Here is an increase for Harrison over the last preceding republican administration amounting to 58 cents per capita per year, or a round $100,000,000 a year.

We give the figures of increase for every head of population because some republicans endeavor to evade responsibility for Harrison's extravagance by saying "this is a growing country." The figures per capita show that his expenditures have increased much above the increase of population. He has made an increase of 9 per cent. over the per capita expenditures and of over 30 per cent. over the total expenditures of the Garfield-Arthur administration. That is, he costs the people 9 per cent. a head more than Garfield and Arthur cost them, and in the total per year this increase makes $100,000,000, or nearly a third of the total sum expended annually under Garfield and Arthur.

We have made this comparison of two republican administrations that republicans may the better understand how costly are Harrison's incompetency and radicalism. Here is a similar comparison for three administrations:

	Per Capita.	Per Year.
Garfield-Arthur	$6.43	$349,611,000
Cleveland	6.12	363,634,000
Harrison	7.01	449,453,000

The reader will see here a great increase in Harrison's average annual expenditures over those of both the Cleveland and the Garfield-Arthur administrations. He will notice also that while Arthur's per capita expenditure is considerably above Cleveland's, Harrison's is much higher than Arthur's.

The plea that the increase of Harrison's total is due to increase of population being thus disposed of, no defense remains for Harrison. He stands confessed on his record the costliest as well as the smallest president the country ever had.—St. Louis Republic.

PUT HIS FOOT INTO IT.

Did Ashley and the Republicans Have a Split?

It Was a Move That Sets His Own Party Against Him and Sounds His Political Death Knell.

The heavens fell.

Ashley has done it.

He has gone and put his foot right into it, and this morning it dawned upon the republicans of the city that their leader's chances were growing slimmer and slimmer.

The are mad—frantic, and there is a big row on, and a grand split from the hallowed precinct of the Second ward to the colored cavalry barracks on Canton avenue.

It is on every republican's lips to-day, and with blanched faces they listen to the death knell ringing in their ears.

What did Ashley do?

Enough.

He opened a barrel or so and subsidized the managers of the A. P. A. to work for him. He put plenty of funds in the project—in fact too much, for, lured on by the sight of gold and greed for sordid gain, the weak committee fell with the usual stereotyped dull sickening thud.

Ashley's plan was to have the A. P. A. committee hire Myers' hall as a headquarters during the last hot days of the campaign and he put up the stuff for rent, clerks, messengers, typewriters, telegraph operators, etc.

So far all's well. The committee plans to work both ends against the middle. The A. P. A. at large is drawn in also to pay the expenses of running the ranch. This was just old peaches—one expense bill and two coffers from which to pay it. There would be a large, fat, juicy residue. For whom?—Well, never mind that—for somebody.

Ah, gold raises the deuce, surely!

This is what Mr. Ashley did, and at what the republicans are mad. The truly American men in the party feel that Ashley's stand in the matter is a grievous mistake and one that will bury him politically forever and ever, amen.

There is a general splitting up of heretofore stanch Ashley men, and good republicans say on the streets to-day that this affair will send Byron Ritchie to congress by an overwhelming majority.

A HANDSOME ELM

In Front of the High School Destroyed

To Allow An Old House to Be Moved Chief Raitz Is Notified But Does Nothing.

The defunct carcass of what was once a house was being hauled along Madison street yesterday.

Along about 6 o'clock in the afternoon it had reached a point in front of the High school building. Here the branches of a magnificent elm, stretching in a graceful arch across the roadway, impeded the progress of the shanty.

The workmen then committed what ought to be a crime, if it isn't. They began to saw off the largest and most beautiful limbs.

A Bee passing by saw the operation, and immediately telephoned Chief Raitz, who said he would attend to it.

This morning, however, the limbs were gone, the tree ruined, and the three dollar house is on its march of destruction.

Some one is to blame for this uncalled for destruction of city property. Toledo has not an over abundance of fine shade trees, and can illy afford to lose one of the handsomest specimens, and that, too, in front of public grounds.

The people in the neighborhood are highly indignant, and are bitter against the police department for the lack of interest shown in the matter.

Quay has gone to New York and the local police are redoubling their vigilance. Policemen and the sheriffs are about the only effective argument to use against republicanism as election day approaches. —St. Louis Republic.

Egan's Tough Hide.

Whitelaw Reid, in the New York Tribune, accused Pat Egan, Mr. Harrison's minister to Chile, of being "a sham patriot" and implied that he was also a defaulter—to the extent of $120,000 of Irish home rule funds. Mr. Egan has not only rested silently under this charge for several years, but actually spoke from Mr. Reid's balcony the other day in advocacy of Reid's election. Egan has a tough hide. Hon. Wayne McVeagh has made it smart, however.—Wheeling Register.

His Day of Grace Has Passed.

In his eloquent and forceful address to the people of Stanberry, Me., published in to-day's Republic, Colonel Stone showed the thin disguise which covered Warner's claim to be "a friend of labor." There was a time when, as member of congress, Warner had many opportunities to manifest his friendship for the labor interests of the country, but he permitted them all to pass by in studied silence. Now that he is in the midst of a political campaign he is desirous of attracting votes, his voce is loud and shrill for the workingman. But it is too thin and too late.—St. Louis Republic.

Calico Charley Confesses to Boodling.

Secretary Foster makes a bold and an astounding effort to justify the prostitution of the ballot by the use of money. Not only does he shamelessly recount his personal boodling operations in several Ohio campaigns, but he declares that he can "see no difference between the church and the saloon" when it comes to putting out money for the purpose of influencing voters. Is not this a most fitting companion-piece for the efforts of the Wanamakers, Dudleys, Quays, Martins, Hacketts, and other republican corruptionists?—New York World.

Fisks! Fisks! Fisks!

THE FOURTEENTH.

M. D. Harter Has Johnson on the Run.

A Vigorous Campaign for the Right Is Bound to Win in this Country.

Norwalk, Oct. 27.—The special dispatch in the Bee reciting the court record at Tiffin involving Candidate E. G. Johnson, in a fraudulent note transaction with an imbicile widow, spread dismay among republicans here. There are some people here who recall having heard of the case at the time, and there are some republican politicians who say that two years ago the friends of Congressman Vincent A. Taylor whispered the damaging tale in the Twentieth district convention when Johnson was defeated for the nomination he then coveted.

The republican disaffection is growing rapidly, and it had already assumed proportions which disheartened the Foraker faction whose bantling Johnson is.

The only line of campaign being employed against Mr. Harter is a persistent endeavor to represent him as doing the double horse act in reference to liquor drinking. The scheme is amusing, as no charge is made that his ideas of regulating the traffic differs in the slightest from that declared in Ohio democratic platforms for years. The charge relates solely to his personal habits, whether he is a teetotaler or not, whether he has been seen in company with a brewer, and whether he tries to drink here and preach prohibition there. Democrats here well know that, personally, Mr. Harter does not indulge in stimulants. He has no appetite for them and frankly declines to take a drink. His position as to controlling the sale of liquor is simply that of the democratic party. If nothing more can be argued against Mr. Harter than the false accusation of his duplicity concerning his drinking habits the disaffection rampant here amongst the republicans cannot be cured. They appear to understand that the charge of double dealing illustrates the double dealing of Johnson's own manager, for the nature of the charge is varied to suit the strong temperance proclivities of Lorain and Huron, and the more moist notions in other counties of the district.

There are many here who assert that since the exposure of his record in the Seneca county court Johnson should withdraw.

Recruits for Harter.

Mansfield, Oct. 27.—The democrats claim Richland county by 1,800, but less sanguine ones feel sure of 1,600. Your correspondent detects an unusual phase to the contest in Mr. Harter's own county. Generally a man who intends to desert his party's nominee is reticent and loath to discuss the reasons, or even his intention. It is impossible to find such concealment in this neighborhood. Republicans of long standing openly declare and seem glad of the opportunity to tell that they will support Harter. This is Sherman's home, and Johnson as an editor has been fiercely abusive of the veteran senator. Beyond all other political questions involved county pride will help swell Harter's vote.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

A Few Pertinent Queries.

To the Editor: The following and similar announcements in the Blade lately may enable its readers to form some idea of how near we are approaching the millennium:

"STARVING WORKMEN. While our "Textile industries are booming, English operatives are crying for bread."

This state of things has made the Blade happy for some time. It seems to gloat over it as a cat does a mouse or a bird it has just crippled. Meantime, Governor McKinley draws $8,000 per year, and complacently pockets his $25 to $50 per day raised by the central committees for telling the people of distant states what a glorious achievement he has wrought—and to be sure and not forget it four years hence, whether wheat then brings 70 cents or not. No matter what you get for wheat or what you pay for all you buy, let it all be done in the name of protection.

And now, who will tell us, what governor of Ohio ever before spent four-fifths of his time out of the state making speeches to boom himself for a position for which he will never be nominated?

Do we need a governor at all is another open question? It don't seem so.

SOBER SECOND THOUGHT.

COLUMBUS.

"An Alien and a Genovese."

Thro' unknown seas, 'neath unknown skies,
Ambition urged him to his goal;
He saw the Isles of Fame arise
With faith and fervor in his soul.

Sure ne'er before in man's career
Triumph and loss so mingled were;
The wand'rer scorned, the earnest seer;
The fetter-laden prisoner!

Yet who shall say his prophet's heart,
Thro' years of trial watching clear,
Was grieved that his had been the part
To mould the half-world to a sphere?

In all his wrongs, his bitter shame,
In death, unpitied and alone,
Who shall deny his right to claim
The epoch's glory for his own?

By hate maligned, by malice wrecked,
In what he was and what he wrought
Still lives his master-intellect
Endowed with many a master-thought.

Still lives, and in this age sublime
Of states serene and peaceful lands
The central figure of the time
The Spirit of Columbus stands!

THE SONG OF PEACE.

A song is astir in the air,
And I would drink it in
With the scent of the roses rich and rare;
But still the battle's din
Rings in my ears and deafens me;
I cannot hear the strain.
The noise of the world, its misery,
Throbs like a bitter pain.

But now and then, as in despair
I seek to rend the bonds,
Comes a burst of harmony on the air
To which my heart responds;
And then the echo of the fray
A moment seems to cease;
Though the wondrous harmony dies away,
That moment brings me peace.

And then I pray I may retain
A peacefulness of heart,
Though the warrior's laurels I fail to gain,
Or riches of the mart.
For that sweet song will give me rest,
And banish all distress;
The flowers of God and the gold of the west
Will be my happiness.

—Flavel Scott Mines in Harper's Bazar.

A IMPRACTICABLE GIRL

"Ned! Ned! Where are you, Ned?"

Ellie Colebridge's tone was one of anxious impatience, as she came into the sitting-room of her pretty country house.

"What is the matter?" inquired Ned, in a sleepy, drawling voice.

"Matter?" said Ellie, dolefully, "read that letter. No, you will go to sleep over it. I'll tell you what's in it. The Claxton's are coming this afternoon."

"I thought they were to come next month?"

"So they were, and here Charley has gone for a week to Boston, and Maggie left this morning. She is only the eleventh girl I have had in six weeks."

Ned puckered up a pretty rosebud of a mouth, and—it must be recorded, shocking as it is—Ned whistled "There's nae luck about the house," as clearly as a boy.

"Oh, Ned, what can I do?" said Ellie, there are four people, and how can I entertain them and do all the work and cooking for such a family?"

"Four?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Claxton, their son Harry and daughter Laura."

H—m—yes. I've heard Charley talk of them!"

"Don't you know them?" Ellie asked, amazed. "I thought they were Charley's most intimate friends."

"Very true; but though Charley is my brother, you must remember while he was at Harvard, forming the acquaintance of the Claxtons and various other people, I was with Aunt Jane at Baltimore, going to school and learning housekeeping—oh!" cried Ned, as a sudden idea seemed to strike her. "Oh, Ellie, have you got some calico dresses and big aprons?"

"Of course I have!"

"So have I—where the Dutchman had his anchor—at home! But Ellie, lend me some of yours, and I'll be your Maggie!"

"Edmonia Colebridge, are you crazy?"

"I can't bring you references from my last place," persisted Ned. "But if I don't suit, you can discharge me!"

"But, Ned, Harry Claxton is coming, and Charley said—thought—" and here Ellie stopped, confused.

Ned tossed her curly head in magnificent disdain.

"You need not tell me what Charley said," she said scornfully, "I can imagine! I hate a match-maker! But, Ellie, I want my own way. Remember you are not to interfere with me, Mrs. Colebridge. 'I don't want no ladies poking about my kitchen,' as your last girl but two used to say."

Ellie remonstrated once more, but feebly.

"I am your sister now," was the reply. "Where are the calico dresses?"

"In my room. It is lucky James boards at home."

"By the way, tell James to hold his tongue. It is time you were getting ready, if you are going to the station."

"But Ned—"

"There, you have no more to say. My name for the next week, by the way, is Jane. Ned is rather too remarkable for a servant girl. I am morally convinced there was a streak of insanity in our family when I was christened 'Edmonia.' Charley made 'Ned' of it before I was a year old. There, my dear—. You will be late."

Very mistrustfully, Mrs. Colebridge brought her guests from the station. During her short acquaintance with her husband's sister, Ned had exactly verified Charley's description of her. He had told his wife:

"Ned is the dearest girl in the world, but dreamy and fond of books; knows more actually at 19 than most women do at 30 of books, music and drawing. She will be literary, I guess; practical, never."

To this dreamy girl who confessed to have written poetry, Ellie had, under the pressure of circumstances, trusted the household affairs for four unknown guests. They were to have come nearly a month later, and Charley was to have been at home, and a paragon of a girl secured somewhere.'

It must be confessed that Ellie carried a smiling face over an anxious heart, as she led her guests to their rooms and descended to the kitchen.

Ned was there, with all her curls twisted into a demure knot at the back of a shapely little head; a blue calico, rather roomy and long (Ellie being the larger of the two), but half hidden under a great checked apron and a narrow linen collar, transforming her into the neatest of servants.

Upon the table stood a pan of biscuit light as down, brown and tempting; broiled chicken lay upon a great dish near the fire; coffee sent forth aromatic flavors, and a spice of tea mingled therewith.

"Be off!" was Ned's salutation. "You are not to come here for a week."

"Laughing, light-hearted Ellie went to the dining-room. All the best china silver and glass upon a snowy damask cloth, upon the table, baskets of cake, light as a feather, glass bowls of strawberries, cream and sugar in silver pitchers and bowls, radishes upon crisp, green leaves even glasses of flowers were there.

She stood admiring, while Ned brought in the chicken and biscuit, the coffee and tea, and demurely rang the bell.

"You can ring if you want me," she said putting the bell upon the tea tray and dropping a saucy courtesy before vanishing into the kitchen, "and, Ellie, we breakfast late."

Thinking that it would be too bad to present Ned yet to her guests, Ellie did not touch the bell, noting that there was an evident enjoyment of their fare among her guests.

She could not altogether enjoy the social evening that followed, though Harry Claxton was as entertaining as Charley had promised, Laura gentle and lovely, and the old people cordially pleasant.

Everything was charming, but the uneasy certainty that Ned was washing dishes, setting breakfast biscuit, and cleaning up in the kitchen.

Ellie fully intended to get breakfast on the following morning, and never opened her blue eyes till the dressing bell rang vigorously at 8 o'clock.

By the time she was dressed her guests had assembled in the sitting-room, and there was nothing to do but to open the door to the dining-room and usher them in.

The dainty table, sparkling in the morning light, was spread temptingly. New-laid eggs, like golden balls, were fried upon slices of ruby-colored ham; a beefsteak to tempt an epicure, broiled tender and juicy, flanked the ham and eggs; water-cresses, all sparkling with dewdrops; potatoes, fried to a crisp brown; aromatic coffee, fragrant tea and muffins of golden tint waited upon good appetites.

Mrs. Claxton could not restrain her admiration.

"What a treasure you must have in the kitchen," she cried, "if you did not come down until we did."

"I have not seen her this morning," was the truthful reply. "She is a treasure."

"Have you had her long?"

"Only since yesterday."

"Ah! I hope she won't drink. These extra good girls are so apt to develop some glaring defect like drink," said the old lady, and wondered what was so intensely funny in her innocent remark, as Ellie broke into a peal of musical laughter

Five days went by, and Mrs. Claxton said to Ellie:

"Do you know, Mrs. Colebridge, I have never seen your treasure? She does the rooms while we are at breakfast, and I never saw such neat rooms; and she sets a table so perfectly that you never have to ring for anything.'

"You will see her to-night," said Ellie; for Ned had actually made time to go to town and secure a twelfth domestic, who was being trained while Ellie spoke; "and I shall have the pleasure also of introducing Charley's sister, Edmonia."

"Ah!"

This was from Harry Claxton, who looked up from the newspaper.

"I want to meet her so much," said Laura: "we heard of her very often when Mr. Colebridge was in Cambridge."

"She is very talented, is she not?" Harry asked.

"We think her so," Ellie answered. "She plays on the piano better than any amateur I ever heard, and sings remarkably well. She was the best scholar in the school when she graduated, and she—don't tell her I told you—writes poetry, real poetry, not merely rhyming lines."

"H—m!" thought Harry. "A tall, raw-boned, strong-minded female."

And while the thought was in his mind there entered a little brown-eyed mite, with long auburn curls, a complexion like a blush-rose, and soft full draperies of blue and white muslin. A little creature, with low, sweet vioce and eyes full of dreamy beauty.

There was undeniably a falling off in the culinary department, though Ned and Ellie slipped away often to superintend the performances of "No. 12," as Ned called her, but if the others found the table less tempting, Henry Claxton only knew the parlors had gained a new charm.

He knew that Edmonia was talented and pretty; he found her beautiful and modest as a violet. The hours beside her, in the garden, in the parlor, on the moonlit porch, sped by like minutes, and the party lingered on till Charley came.

Then, that he might not be cheated out of his visit, they were coaxed to remain a week longer, and still Harry never tired of the soft brown eyes, the low, sweet voice and modest, refined manner of Edmonia Colebridge.

They learned duets together, and they would talk, never tiring, of books and the current topics of the day, till the man found himself wondering at the rare intellect within the curly head.

Charley looked on, well pleased, but upon Mrs. Claxton's fair, matronly face rested a shadow of anxiety. When the visit had extended over three weeks, Laura having left for a previous engagement, bearing Harry's regrets for breaking the same, Harry dared his fate and won Ned's confession that she gave love for love

And Mrs. Claxton, in Ellie's room, thus accounted for the shadow upon her brow.

"You see, dear, I am old fashioned in my notions, and I believe in educating girls for wives and housekeepers as well as for parlor companions. As soon as Laura left school I taught her to cook so that she can either superintend her servants, or, if necessity requires it, take their place. Yet she is not the less a graceful lady, I think."

"You are right. She is as lovely a girl as I ever met," Ellie said, half guessing what was coming.

"And, dear, that is what worries me about Harry's choice. I think Edmonia is one of the most charming girls I ever met, pretty as a flower, graceful, modest and accomplished. But she seems to me so dreadfully helpless and dreamy.

"I don't know how often I have found her curled up like a kitten in the window seat, her eyes seeming to be looking miles away, and her hands lying idly before her. You know, dear, she writes, too, and literary women are too often impracticable.

"To be sure Harry will have money enough to give her every comfort, and he has a good start in his profession. But, still, dear, I could wish his wife had some knowledge of housely ways, and was not so dreamy."

Ellie smiled, and said:

"Do you remember our invisible girl, Mrs. Claxton—the one who was here when you first came?"

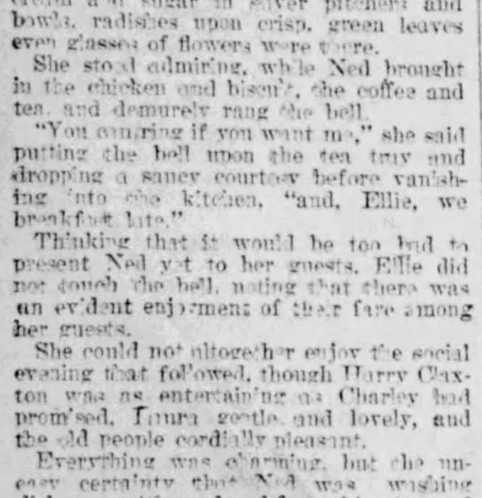
"Yes, my dear, I have wondered why you sent her away. The one you have now doesn't compare to her. I never ate such biscuit. Why did she leave? Did she drink, after all?"

"She did not leave. She only changed her name to Edmonia Colebridge."

"My dear!" cried the astonished old lady, "you are joking!"

"I was never more serious in my life," said Ellie, and gave a detailed account of her perplexities and Ned's devotion.

"Well, well, who would dream she hid so much energy under that sleepy manner. You have lifted the only care from my mind, my dear. I can congratulate Harry now with my whole heart."



Young and beautiful woman, suffering from general debility, indigestion and weakness.

There are thousands of women in the United States in a similar condition. Can't sleep. Cannot retain food. Beauty spoiled. Looks old before thirty.

The proper thing is to use the genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract, which has attained a world-wide reputation for its beneficial effects in building up a weakened constitution. It is used by the first ladies in the land, by crowned heads abroad. It is in daily use by the Courts of Germany and Austria, and recognized as the best nutritive tonic and dietetic table beverage for invalids and dyspeptics.

Lots of counterfeits on the market. Avoid them; they are dangerous.

The genuine has the signature of "Johann Hoff" on the neck of every bottle. Eisner & Mendelson Co., New York.

IT ISN'T FREE TRADE.

Tariff Reform does not necessarily mean free trade. It means an improvement of the weak points of the present system. That's something that ought to be popular with everybody. The new "Tariff Reform" cakes baked by Worts-Kirk-Bigelow bakery are popular with everybody already. One reason is they are simply delightful cakes. Another is they represent a popular sentiment; popular with both republicans and democrats. You can get "Tariff Reform" cakes from your grocer. If he hasn't them in stock tell him to get them for you.

Queen Marguerite, of Italy, recently arrived in a town where great preparations had been made to do her honor, and, being offered some lunch, declined it and said that all she needed was a glass of water. The water being brought, she drank it and was about to take her handkerchief from her pocket in order to wipe her lips when the mayor, misinterpreting her action, bowed respectfully and said: "Your majesty need not trouble yourself. I can assure you that the lunch is all paid for."

POISONOUS WATER GAS.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—During Monday night A. B. Collins and his wife, colored, of 4021 Cottage Grove avenue, were asphyxiated by water gas leaking from a neglected fixture. Their bodies were not discovered until to-day. It was doubtless a case of accidental death.

A Berlin letter indulges in the following sarcasm: During the prevalence of the cholera scare in Germany the army has been permitted to indulge temperately in liquor as a preventive to the disease. Each private soldier has been allowed the munificent sum of three-quarters of a cent a day with which to purchase ardent spirits.

Money that comes easily usually goes easy and sometimes it goes rightly. Some three or four months ago Baron Hirsch distributed all his earnings on the turf for the previous year, amounting to $70,000, among deserving English charities. He has since accumulated fresh profits from the races won by his horses and he intimates that a further sum of $100,000 will be available for charitable purposes at the beginning of 1893.

Major Sinclair, of Fort Warren, in Boston harbor, and a private detective of the ill-fated name of Peck are in trouble. They arrested one Charles M. Pierce for alleged desertion from the army, but after keeping him in jail 19 days allowed him to go. Pierce claims that he is a patriot of unblemished reputation and has brought suit against Sinclair and Peck for false imprisonment. He wants $1,300 for each day he was restrained from his liberty.

In the old world they have some queer property ways of proceeding. Some of the local usages of Cornwall are rather extraordinary. The other day the lease of a Falmouth hotel was put up for sale. The lease of the house is dependent upon the lives of the duke of Edinburgh, Princess Beatrice and Adolphus, son of the duke of Teck. The lease lasts just as long as one or the other of these illustrious personages remains alive. When the last of them dies the lease expires.

The Geographical Society of Paris sent to the mayor of Genoa a magnificent crown to be placed upon the monument of Christopher Columbus. It was presented by the French consul-general at Genoa, who made a very pretty little speech testifying to the great admiration which the French society always had for Christopher Columbus, and the mayor in response expressed the hope that Italy and France would never love each other less ardently than is the case now. The truth, perhaps, is that they could not very much less.

It is well known that ants harbor a variety of other insects in their nests, particularly Gamasid mites, and Mr. A. D. Michael, from a study of ants in Corsica and at Innsbruck, has come to the conclusion that the ants willingly tolerate the presence of the Gamasids, and even protect them. The mites are found to ride away on the backs of the ants when the nest is disturbed; and sometimes the ants carry off the mites and their young just as they do their own. Mr. Michael thinks the mites repay the ants for their hospitality by removing the bodies of their dead, which they devour.

The latest machine designed for use in electric spark photography gives quite remarkable results. Articles moving at the rate of 10,000 miles an hour can be photographed, and, by the introduction of a revolving mirror, a speed of 180,000 miles an hour can be coped with. The mirror makes 1,024 turns every second, worked by electricity, which is about 150 times as fast as a rifle bullet travels. The whole photographic power of the spark is over in a time equal to the ten or eleven-millionth part of a second, and it is during that incredibly brief space that the image is made on the sensitive plate.

Notwithstanding their diminutive size, pugnacity is one of the most conspicuous traits of humming birds. Even kingbirds and the bravest hawks are afraid of them, being compelled to retreat before the impetuous assaults of the tiny warrior, whose boldness is only equaled by the lightning-like rapidity of his movements, thus baffling any attempt at resistance on the part of the more powerful adversary. The lance-like thrusts of the needle-like beak is usually directed at the eyes of the enemy. When two or more individuals of either sex happen near the same spot, spirited and often violent conflicts are almost certain to ensue.—Boston Transcript.

An elevated railway, six miles in length is soon to be thrown open to traffic at Liverpool. It is to be worked by electricity. A train will consist of two carriages, each to seat 56 passengers, and provided with a motor at one end. All the carriages will be exactly alike, and will contain compartments for two classes of passengers, with through communication from end to end of the train under the control of the guard. The journey from end to end (inclusive of stoppages), is to be performed in half an hour. The signals will be electrically worked by the trains themselves. The permanent way is also of a novel construction. Longitudinal sleepers, resting upon and keyed to the arched decking, support the rails and the electric conductor. The total cost of the railway, including equipment, will be about $400,000 per mile.

CORBETT IN TROUBLE.

A Chicago "Booky" Has a Great Big Gun

And Says He'll Fill Jim Full of Holes.

The Probabilities Are, However, That He Will Not Do Anything of the Kind.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—It has just transpired that James Corbett, who was in this city last week, came very near being sent to his last account by a well-known Chicago sport, Maxey Bluementhal, who is making a book at the Hawthorne track.

Blumenthal was told by a friend that Corbett was making love to a fair lady on whom Blumenthal lavishes the wealth of his affection. Max was informed that the pair had an arrangement for last Thursday night. Blumenthal got on the trail of the pair that night as they were getting into a hack.

"Corbett, I've caught you, you d—d scoundrel!" hissed the maddened booky, between his teeth.

Corbett felt the cold steel pressed against his cheek. The woman had crouched down in the corner of the carriage in a heap.

The driver of the carriage gazed on the scene with open mouth.

Corbett turned his face down street and and walked away.

"Now drive this woman home, and be sudden about it!" ejaculated the man with the pistol.

The driver needed no second injunction.

The contemplated festivities had been postponed on account of the threatening weather.

This was, however, but the beginning of the end. Corbett finished his engagement at the Haymarket theater Saturday night and departed for Cincinnati, where his company plays this week. Blumenthal's pretty charmer disappeared also and it is surmised that she also went to Cincinnati.

So strongly impressed was Blumenthal with this idea that Monday night he added another field piece to his arsenal and took a night train for Cincinnati. Before leaving he informed his friends that he intended to kill both Corbett and his companion on sight.

As no blood-curdling messages have been received from Cincinnati, it is supposed that he has not sighted them.

Blumenthal, the booky, was missing from his accustomed box at Hawthorne yesterday and from his usual place of resort last night. The friends of both Corbett and Blumenthal are anxiously awaiting the returns from Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, Oct. 27.—Corbett was seen at the Burnett house and read the foregoing dispatch. He was very angry when he finished it. said he:

"That is one of those things that contains enough truth to prevent it from being a lie. It is grossly exaggerated, but I suppose I ought not get mad at it.

"I realize that a man in my position and business is subject to all sorts of criticism, still there is nothing like fairness in anything.

"The facts are that the young woman referred to is of very sensational disposition, and wanted to meet me probably because I have the distinction of being champion. I encountered her nearly ever night I was in Chicago.

"Thursday night she waited outside the theater in a carriage and I did go out to meet her. Just as I got to the carriage door Mr. Blumenthal came up with a gun in his hand. I saw the revolver and said: 'What do you mean?'

"He replied: 'What do you mean by being with my girl?'

"I said: 'Why take your girl. I don't want her and I don't intend to get into any trouble about her.'

"With that Blumenthal got in the carriage and drove off with the girl. That was all there was to it. There was no swearing and no begging off at all."

BOYCOTTING POSTMASTERS.

Difficult for the Department to Meet Such Trouble.

General Superintendent J. E. White of the Railway Mail Service has issued an order to correct a misapprehension in the minds of many postmasters regarding his midsummer circular on "Boycotting." He explains that there is no way by which the department can prevent the mailing of letters on the cars, as every postal car is regarded as a postoffice for the distribution of mail in transit, and Section 3980 of the Revised Statutes compels postal clerks to accept all mail matter offered them, if the postage thereon has been properly prepaid. It would, therefore, be contrary to law to instruct postal clerks to refuse mail matter offered them.

He adds: We can, however, assist in many cases in reducing the annoyance; as, for instance, where any employe of a railroad company, upon application, will usually instruct its agent to discontinue such practice. All such cases should be reported to the division superintendent of railway mail service. Where the mailing of letters upon the cars is done through malice, nothing can be done, unless the facts justify the discontinuance of the postoffice altogether, on the grounds that the people do not appreciate the mail facilities afforded them. Where it is simply the result of carelessness, much can be done by the postmater if he will take the matter with the parties who are in the habit of mailing their letters on the cars, and request that when possible they be mailed at the postoffice, in order that he may secure the compensation to which he is justly entitled.

Dry Goods.

New York, Oct. 27.—Business in dry goods was fair at first hands. The general market was very strong.

Manchester, Oct. 27.—The Guardian, in its commercial article, says: Business is small, though the prices of most manufactures are strong. Transactions for the east are not numerous. Sellers who do not hold out for extreme figures have secured a few fair lines of orders. Shirtings appear to be in less request. Mulls, jacconets and kindred cloths are too low in price for manufacturers to entertain much business. Sellers of fine reed bleaching shirtings complain of poor prices. The demand for printing cloths is unsatisfactory. The demand for yarns is less active. Quotations are a shade higher.

GIVEN UP BY QUAY.

The Republicans Can't Carry New York.

They Must Cast About for Some Other Means of Electing Harrison.

New York, Oct. 27.—Everybody in politics knows that Matt Quay has been placated like Mr. Platt. Everybody knows that from now on there is going to be some tremendous work done in politics. Up to yesterday both sides had been laughing in their sleeves. It isn't any laughing matter any longer. The republicans have recognized that the young man from Pennsylvania is a little too much for Tom Carter, even with Clarkson at his elbow.

So Quay came on to look at things. That is what he says he came here for. He makes no bones about saying he was asked to come, and he says that in a day or two he may tell an anxious public what he thinks of the prospect. Perhaps the men who bet on elections are waiting to hear from Mr. Quay. It is certain that his side of the house are not looking for bets yet. Col. Swords started out with his $50,000 roll on Oct. 14, in 1888, and here it is Oct. 27 and no money up and no bluffs made.

At a chop house on Twenty-seventh street a couple of days ago Don Dickinson displayed a certified check for $5,000 and offered to put it up against an equal amount of bills, checks or coin that Grover Cleveland would be the next president of the United States. A republican who was lunching there said he would go down town and get the money to "see" Mr. Dickinson. He hasn't got back yet.

But Mr. Quay was up town. The gentleman who manipulated President Harrison into the white house in 1888 did really spend quite a time in the upper rooms of the house on Fifth avenue, just above Forty-third street, where the sign of a brawny arm threatening to smash an anvil tells the passing throng that there the manufacturer shells out his boodle. Senator Quay didn't go up town by himself. Gen. Clarkson, who had done good and telling work in 1888, went with him.

Even with Dave Martin, in whom Mr. Quay has all the confidence in the world, he told the committee that it was no use trying to capture New York. That wasn't very welcome advice.

"It's no use, gentlemen," said Mr. Quay. If he didn't use those exact words he conveyed that sense. "They've got New York. We've got to offset them elsewhere."

UNITARIANS.

Second Day's Session Devoted to Memorial

Moline, Ill., Oct. 27.—The second day's session of the state conference of Unitarians is being largely devoted to memorial addressess. An eloquent tribute to the memory of Walt Whitman was delivered by Rev. J. W. Skillings, of Dixon, and the life and labors of the late George William Curtis were discussed by Rev. S. B. Loomis, of Monmouth, while a memorial address on John G. Whittier was made by Rev. J. Grumbine. A paper on the contribution of the Columbian exposition to religion was presented by Mrs. W. H. Perkins, and the convention concluded with a sermon by Rev. J. Vila Blake, of Chicago, and who took for his subject, "Natural Religion as a Spiritual Stay."

TRAIN DISPATCHERS.

They Meet in Memphis and Form an Organization.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 27.—Delegates representing over 800 train dispatchers from all portions of the United States, Canada and Mexico, met here yesterday and organized the Train Dispatchers' National Protective association.

W. W. Olcott, of Arkansas, was elected temporary chairman and O. L. Emlay temporary secretary. The question of embodying the protection feature in the order's constitution was defeated.

The new association is an outgrowth of the order of Train Dispatchers, some of the members of which left the order because of a split at the recent meeting of the order in New Orleans.

YALE.

The Athletic Sports Are Being Run Off.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 27.—The initial contests of the Yale Athletic association are in progress to-day. They are in charge of W. J. Murphy, who is considered one of the best short distance trainers in the country. In the association are many good athletes who have come here with reputations already made. Cox, from St. Paul, has the record of 116 feet as a hammer-thrower, and Hickox, who has done good work in the foot ball team, is also known for his abilities in the same line. The class has also several fine bicycle riders, who will put the Harvard men on their metal next spring.

HE WANTED TO DIE.

Tiffin, O., Oct. 27.—George Burrier, a farmer of Liberty township, near the village of Fort Seneca, hung himself to a rafter in his barn, and was apparently lifeless when his 88-year old father entered the barn and cut the rope by which he was suspended.

The man was resuscitated with much difficulty, and is not yet restored to consciousness. Burrier's mind had become unsettled by worrying over a trifling difficulty which he had had with some of his neighbors regarding a ditch.

The chief dependence of those liable to sudden colds is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

KER IS THE MAN.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 27.—In the Dauphin county court to-day Judge Simonton decided in the McAleer-Ker case that W. W. Ker is the regular democratic nominee in the Third congressional district of Philadelphia. McAleer is the independent democratic nominee and has been indorsed by the republicans.

ABBOTT TO RESIGN.

Canada's Premier Has Had Enough.

Little Doubt Expressed in Official Circles But What Thompson Will Succeed Him.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 27.—It is understood that the government has been advised from England that Premier Abbott will soon forward his resignation to Lord Stanley.

In consequence of which 27 conservative members of parliament were summoned to this city yesterday to confer with the government as to his successor.

There is little doubt that Sir John Thompson will get the appointment.

ON THE MAJESTIC.

London, Oct. 27.—The White Star steamship Majestic, which left New York on October 19, came to Queenstown this morning. Owing to a severe easterly gale and the heavy sea there was much difficulty in transferring passengers, mail and baggage. The lines holding one tender parted, and another tender was in some danger of being swept beneath the steamer. No serious mishap, however, occurred.

SHOCKING BOYCOTT.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—A boycott has been ordered against the Western Electric company. The Electrical Wire Workers' union has notified the members that no union man can handle or put up any material sent out from that company. The Western Electric company is the principal firm that the union is now fighting, but this boycott will, in a measure, affect the smaller firms, as they are sometimes obliged to buy their goods from the Western company.

Official Test of Rubber-Lined Cotton Fire Hose by the Board of Fire Commissioners of Duluth, Minn., February 25, 1892.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the city of Duluth, Minn., recently received proposals from manufacturers of fire hose to furnish the city with additional hose for fire department service.

Owing to the fact that every agent present upon that occasion, claimed to represent the ONLY brand of hose that could be depended upon to dischage the greatest quantity of water, all other conditions being equal, the commissioners finally resolved to satisfy themselves, and declared in favor of having a public test. Manufacturers who desired to enter the test were requested to furnish 500 feet of hose, with Duluth fire department couplings attached.

Seven competitors entered the field. Each line of hose—500 feet—was attached to a steam fire engine, and subjected to a water pressure of 200 lbs. to the square inch, and discharged water through 1 1-8-inch smooth bore nozzle. Note the result:

Name of Company	Brand of Hose.	Weight of Hose per Section	Effective Pressure at Nozzle.	Gall'ns Disch'rg'd per Minute	Ratio in Gals Disch'rg'd per Hr.	No. of gal. less per hr. than disch'd by the surprise hose.	Elongation of Hose.
Eureka Fire Hose Co...	Surprise Jacket....	59½ lbs	95 lbs	359	21,540	000	11½ ft
C. Callahan Co.........	Callahan Jacket...	59½ lbs	89 lbs	347	20,820	720	14 ft
Gutta Percha Mfg. Co..	Baker Fabric	48½ lbs	85 lbs	339	20,340	1200	32 ft
Fabric Fire Hose Co....	Unique Jacket.....	63½ lbs	84 lbs	337	20,220	1320	25 ft
Chicago Fire Hose Co...	National Jacket...	61 lbs	82½ lbs	334	20,040	1500	44 ft
Revere Rubber Co.....	American Jacket..	62½ lbs	80 lbs	329	19,740	1800	14 ft
Boston Woven Hose Co	Boston Fire Jacket	52 lbs	79 lbs	327	19,620	1920	27 ft

Owing to a high wind prevailing during the test, the distance reached by each stream was not taken into consideration.

The "Surprise" hose not only showed the best results at the nozzle but delivered the greatest quantity of water, and stretched less than any other hose that entered the test.

ANOTHER GHOST STORY.

Reported Conspiracy to Murder Simpson.

The Sockless Statesman From the Wild West Now Has a Body Guard.

Wichita, Ks., Oct. 27.—The latest political sensation here is the story of an alleged plot to assassinate Hon. Jerry Simpson.

Chairman Briedenthal, of the people's party, claims to have received from Mr. S. E. Cole, of Harper, Ks., letters which the latter secured from a drunken man at the latter place a few days ago.

The letters were addressed to "Robert Swivell," and were postmarked at Troy, Emporia and other towns in Kansas.

They were signed "F. A. P.," and contained a proposition to murder Jerry Simpson and offered to pay the sum of $2,000 to "Swivell" if he would undertake to accomplish the deed. It is believed that "Swivell" is an assumed name, but it is known that mail addressed to Robert Swivell has been received and delivered to a party giving that name at the postoffice at Harper.

The members of the people's party express alarm at the discovery and from now until the close of the campaign Simpson will be furnished with a body guard.

Angostura, the world-renowned South American appetizer, cures dyspepsia, etc. Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons, sole manufacturers. At all druggists.

The word Arkansas is of Indian stock. A tribe of Indians who rebelled and separated from the Kansas nation were celebrated for the fine quality of their bows. From this they were called Arc or Bow Indians, and afterward "Arkansas."

LINES DRAWN,

And Every Body Ready for the Battle,

Which Will Settle a National Question.

Indiana Is Conceded to Cleveland.

No Chance for Ben in New York.

A Last Effort of the Republicans to Elect Harrison Without Either of the Above States.

New York, Oct. 27.—But two short weeks remain of the great national campaign of 1892, and both sides have now well determined how they shall make their final assaults. It is an open secret here in republican circles, or rather hardly a secret at all, that the republican managers have given up Indiana as utterly hopeless. From the day that Gresham made his announcement against Harrison the state has been anchored in the Cleveland column, and the president's own state will be spared the shame of a repetition of the debauchery of 1888 simply because money cannot carry it. In this state the republicans are making a most desperate and somewhat hopeful battle. They are not confident of success, but they have a remote chance of winning the electoral vote. Believing that success here would assure Harrison's re-election, exhaustive efforts will be made from now until election day to carry New York, but even while thus giving the utmost efforts and resources to carry the Empire state, the Harrison leaders feel that the odds are largely against them, and that they must look outside both New York and Indiana to assure success.

They have figured closely on the electoral vote, and assuming that Harrison will carry all the states he carried in 1888, with the exception of New York, Indiana and Nevada, they could, with the aid of the six new states, and by carrying nine of the electors in Michigan and the electoral votes of Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia, give Harrison a bare majority of the electoral college. This is skating on fearfully thin ice, but they don't do it from choice. It is the last chance of saving republican power. Grasping at these remote possibilities as a drowning man would grasp at a straw, there will be the most bewildering efforts at debauchery in Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia during the next two weeks. Already the methods have been foreshadowed in Delaware, where the republican federal supervisors boldly arrested democratic registration officers on Saturday last. All the money that can be used to debauch voters will be expended in Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia from now until election day. It is possible that they may carry one or even two of them, but it is hardly within the range of possibility that they can carry all of them. They carefully prospected New Jersey, and at one time were hopeful of success there, but they have given up New Jersey on the electoral ticket, as the republican leaders themselves say that the state cannot be taken from Cleveland. They believe that a hopeful fight might be made for governor in that state, but the national managers care nothing for a governor if the electoral vote is beyond reach. Besides there is little prospect for a United States senator in New Jersey, as the holding-over senators are largely democratic.

Such is the situation as it appears today in this center of political direction. The democrats understand the situation precisely as the republicans do, and they are fully prepared for the desperate assaults that are to be made upon Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia; but, while the republicans are assaulting these states, the democratic leaders understand that the republicans are much more likely to lose some of the Harrison states of 1888 outside of Nevada, which seems to be conceded to Weaver, than the republicans are to carry Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia. Rhode Island and New Hampshire are certainly more debatable for the republicans than Connecticut and Delaware for the democrats, and even Massachusetts is not entirely ironclad for republican electors. In addition to the New England states all of the states west of the Mississippi to the Rocky mountains, and also the northwestern states, are disputed with more or less energy by the democrats, and certainly with reasonable expectation of partial success in some of them. In Wisconsin I would estimate the chances of the democrats as one out of three for success, and in Iowa one chance out of five, while in New York state the republicans have not one chance in twenty. Colorado is certainly doubtful, with probabilities in favor of Harrison. Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Wyoming and South Dakota all have fusion movements against Harrison and it will be remarkable if some of them do not succeed. In Michigan the democrats claim seven of the electoral votes, conceding the republicans seven. In the close republican calculation for the election of Harrison the republicans claim nine and must receive that number to succeed. The elements of doubt therefore seem to be vastly greater against the republicans in a dozen of their own states than are the elements of doubt in the only three democratic states the republican leaders hope to carry, namely—Connecticut, Delaware and West Virginia, and this gives the democrats to-day vastly the greater confidence of success in November.

If David Martin had remained in Philadelphia and not attempted to manage affairs in this city, the republicans would have been in very much better condition here to-day. He came heralded as an expert in election crookedness, and his coming has been resented a an insult to the city. While he is a master in the management of the Nineteenth ward in Philadelphia and like centers of political crookedness in that city, when he is called upon to handle a great city like New York against Tammany hall, the most perfect machine the world has ever known, it is like sending a toddling child to wrestle with a giant. While the democratic papers have made Martin most odious in the estimation of honest citizens, the practical politicians of the city have met Martin in his own way, and they have played him in the most bewildering fashion. They have set up innumerable jobs upon him, arranged to get vast sums of money out of the corrupt fund that he is disbursing, and they could to-day arrest him and put him in prison in scores of cases where they have dusted his eyes and played him for a political tenderfoot. They believe that they can do better, however, than by sending him to prison, and they will play him from this until election day. Even with all the shrewdness of John I. Davenport to aid him Martin has been gobbled up over and over again in this contest, and is to-day at the mercy of hundreds of Tammany experts who have lured him into almost every phase of political crookedness. Martin in New York without Quay to throw his protecting arms around him is a pitiable novice in politics, as he and his party friends will learn sometime within the next two weeks. I am quite sure that he has never done more to help his own party in Philadelphia than he has done this year to help Tammany in New York city.

The announcement of the death of Mrs. Harrison made political friends and foes of the stricken president unite in the sincerest expressions of sorrow. The common brotherhood of the American people was exhibited on every side as the generous humanity of the noblest people of the world asserted itself.

The headquarters of the democratic national committee led in draping its flag and lowering it to half-mast, and I never was prouder of American womanhood than when I heard Mrs. Cleveland, in a circle of casual visitors, express the tenderest sentiments of sorrow over the affliction that has fallen upon the home of the president. Her sweet, simple, unaffected manner was even more impressive than the tremulous words with which she voiced the universal sympathy of the nation.
